Students' Alcohol Use Continues to Be Concern Of Borough Officials

As it does very year, the beginning of classes at Princeton University triggers a spate of problems connected with alcohol abuse. This, as always, is accompanied by a spate of concerns about this same issue on the part of Borough officials.

The number and type of incidents this Fall has led Borough Mayor Marvin Reed to consider reopening the town/gown discussion held last year on introducing an ordinance that would permit Borough police to enforce underage drinking laws on private property. The discussions resulted in the Borough's tabling such an ordinance.

Last Fall, Borough Police Chief Charles Davall said that in the University's first month, seven students were taken to the Princeton Medical Center by ambulance because of alcohol consumption. All were under age 21.

At Borough Council's meeting last week, Chief Davall said police had already made seven arrests on Prospect Avenue, the site of Princeton University's eating clubs, and four arrests for drunk driving, a number considerably higher than in previous years. In six of the Prospect Avenue incidents, ambulances were required. All involved females. In one case, a woman fell off a bar, while another jumped out a window and broke her leg, said Chief Davall.

Mayor Marvin Reed said the situation on campus appeared to be worse than at the eating clubs. "Club people tell you students are drinking before getting to the club. Students are drinking excessively in dorms."

An incident that happened several weeks earlier on Prospect Avenue was brought to Council's attention by Chief Davall. He said that at 3 a.m. officers saw a sea of cars and people on the street, and then found out that Quad Club had rented out the club to a Princeton University fraternity. The fraternity, in turn, invited others to attend the party.

There were about a thousand people

Library Loses More Time But Wins Case

Officials of the Princeton Public Library had reasons to be both disappointed and pleased last week.

Although the beginning of construction of the new $18 million downtown building for the library will be delayed an additional month until December 1, the library's recent decision to award its contract was upheld in court.

During the last week of September, just prior to the expected completion date of a soil remediation project currently being conducted by PSE&G, library officials were informed of the discovery of tar residue that had seeped from an underground storage tank.

That announcement pushed the originally targeted completion date of October 1 back one month to November 1. Last week, library officials were informed by PSE&G that the remediation project would not be completed until December 1.

Under an agreement issued by the state Department of Environmental Protection (DEP), PSE&G is removing thousands of cubic yards of potentially contaminated soil at the library's site — part of the Park & Shop lot — and replacing it with approved soil.

According to Leslie Cifelli, spokeswoman for Public Service Enterprise Group, the parent company of PSE&G, the project will not likely be concluded before December 1.

Whether or not the original opening date for the new library of December 2003 will be met remains to be determined. According to Eric Greenfoldt, assistant director of the library, the delay could mean that the library project, which has a construction period of 450 days, will extend into 2004.

"If we don't get the site back until December 1, then we will adjust the schedule accordingly," said Harry Levine, president of the library's board of trustees, who expressed reserved optimism that the site could be returned prior to December 1.

Other Unions Within School District Benefit From Teachers' Negotiations

In an unprecedented step, the Princeton Regional School District decided recently to award the same salary increases negotiated with the local teachers' union to the district's two other unions: the Princeton Regional Educational Support Staff Association (PRESSA) and the Princeton Regional Administrators Association (PRAA).

The announcement comes after a prolonged negotiation process between representatives of the Princeton Regional Board of Education and the Princeton Regional Education Association (PREA), the teachers' union, and a two-day strike by the union, the first in the district's history.

At a September 18 meeting, the membership of the PREA approved the terms of the negotiated settle-ple in the street, and Borough police called for West Windsor and Princeton Township police to restore order. Chief Davall said the group was not unruly, but that it consisted of a large number of people. He also said that further investigation showed that alcohol had not been served at the club.

Councilman David Goldfarb encouraged everyone to visit Prospect Avenue at 2:30 in the morning. "You have no idea what it's like," he said. Mayor Reed added that people nearby call in with noise complaints.

The Borough police chief historically meets with presidents of the eating clubs early in the school year to discuss alcohol consumption. This year, said Chief Davall, he has accelerated the process and had already met with two club presidents.

On Monday, Borough Mayor Marvin Reed met with University officials to discuss the Borough's concerns about alcohol abuse on campus and in the clubs, noting too the unusually high number of students arrested for DWI. Although he was told of a new program to provide education on the effects of alcohol to students, as well as other University initiatives, Mr. Reed said after the meeting that he "was still looking for more," and was also seeking a more definitive policy on what resident advisers will do in terms of counselling an evening of Halloween fun on Friday, October 25 from 7 to 9 p.m. Halloween at the YMCA offers a free and safe trick-or-treat experience for preschoolers through 5th graders.

Pointing to the increased number of students arrested for DWI, Mayor Reed said that, if convicted in municipal court, students can be brought in for counseling by the University.

Last year — after considerable discussion and a town/gown forum on the subject — Council tabled further consideration of an ordinance permitting police to enforce under-age drinking laws on private property. The State Legislature in 2000 had granted authority to municipal bodies to pass such an ordinance.

At a forum held in October 2001 in Whig Hall on the University campus, eating club representatives spoke against the ordinance. The head of the Inter Club Council said that if students thought they would get into trouble by violating the ordinance they would not seek medical help at McCosh Infirmary or the Princeton Medical Center.

Several students in the audience said that minors sometimes drink in their rooms and then stumble into the clubs, and that the privately owned eating clubs are generally a safe and controlled environment for for young experimenters.

Quaker Cemetery Reflects History, Simplicity of Early Community

This article is the fourth in a four-part series on the history and beauty of local cemeteries.

Located next to the Quaker Meeting House, behind a low brick wall, and through an iron gate, a simple cemetery marked by few headstones offers a window into the heritage and life of the Quaker community in Princeton.

The names of numerous local families — including Olden, Clarke, Worth, and Homer — reflect the local significance and history of the meeting house and a burial yard.

The original Quaker Meeting House was built in 1726. According to Ms. Borden, that meeting house was the first place of worship in the immediate area.

Although the structure was destroyed by fire in 1759, it was rebuilt by 1760, and that meeting house remains intact on its original site. In addition, a school building was Princeton Monthly Meeting of the Religious Society of Friends at Stony Brook, commonly known as the Princeton Friends Meeting, which constructed the first place of worship in the area.

According to information prepared by George H. Brown Jr. regarding the history of the Princeton Cemetery, except for several private plots on pre-Revolutionary War family farms, the Quaker Cemetery is the oldest local burial grounds.

Gloria Borden, a member of the Princeton Friends Meeting and the former head of trustees of the Princeton Friends School, prepared material on the history of the Quaker community in Princeton for the Historical Society of Princeton.

Holy Experiment

According to Ms. Borden, as part of his "Holy Experiment," William Penn and 11 other Quakers bought land in East Jersey in 1681 from the widow of Philip Carteret, who was the heir to the original land grant bestowed to Sir George Carteret of England.

Shortly thereafter, 12 more individuals bought land in the area around Princeton. With 20 of the 24 individuals being Quakers, the early Princeton community was heavily influenced by Quaker beliefs.

Records indicate that the land on which the Quaker Meeting House and the Quaker Cemetery currently rests was owned in 1681 by Thomas Wame. In 1696, land that included nearly 10 acres that originally extended southwest of the current property to the Stony Brook was sold to Benjamin Clarke.

In 1709, according to Ms. Borden, a portion of the land was granted by Mr. Clarke to Richard Stockton, the grandfather of the signer of the Declaration of Independence of the same name, and several other Quaker farmers — including Joseph Worth, Isaac Homer, Samuel William, and Samuel Bunting — for the construction of a

Myanmar Experiences Will Be Discussed

Zoologist and wildlife explorer Alan Rabinowitz will speak at a special program on Sunday afternoon, October 20, in Friend Center, Princeton University, corner of William and Olden Streets. Dr. Rabinowitz will speak about his adventures in the far north, mountainous region of Myanmar (Burma) where he discovered four "new" mammals and helped establish one of the largest wildlife sanctuaries in Southeast Asia. This adventure story has been recently published by Dr. Rabinowitz in Beyond the Last Village: A Journey of Discovery in Asia's Forbidden Wilderness.

In 1993 Dr. Rabinowitz, director of the Science and Exploration Program at the Wildlife Conservation Society, based at the Bronx Zoo, received an invitation from the Government of Myanmar to "discuss wildlife." That "discussion" evolved into a seven-year journey of exploration, danger, and discovery in a rugged corner of wilderness wedged between the eastern boundary of the Himalayas and the ancient mountains of western China. Dr. Rabinowitz was the first western scientist to visit these farthest reaches of Myanmar in nearly 50 years.

The program is sponsored jointly by the Princeton University International Center and Cetana Educational Foundation of Princeton. Cetana Educational Foundation provides financial assistance to Burmese who will do career studies outside the country and then return to Myanmar to work rebuilding its economy and its society. The program will begin at 4. A reception with special Burmese food will follow the talk. Tickets are $35, payable at the door. Reservations are encouraged. Call Cetana Educational Foundation at 924-0667.

HiTOPS Holds Workshops On Talking to Teens

Citing the need for better communication between parents and teens, HiTOPS will hold a series of workshops this fall for parents of young teen girls in grades six to nine. The subject is "How to Talk about Sex, Health and Values." A workshop for young teen boys will be held early next year.

Founded in 1988, HiTOPS (Health Interested Teens' Own Program on Sexuality) is a non-profit organization providing health and educational services for teens in central New Jersey.

"We know that the average age of first intercourse is 16 for boys and 17 for girls," said Lisa Blum, PsyD., HiTOPS director of Education. "If we want our children to understand our values, we need to start talking to them about sex when they are still young."

The workshops will kick off a new approach by HiTOPS to reach a larger adult audience. "The teens know we're here," Ms. Blum said. "But many of their parents are unaware of who we are and what we do. Their role is important in educating teens."

The first workshop, October 21, is "Talk to Me." It will help parents open up communication with their young teenaged girls. Parents will be able to voice their concerns and to ask questions about the current realities of teenage sexuality. Media influences and peer pressure will be discussed. Teen peer educators and HiTOPS' staff will present the workshop.

The workshops series will include seven sessions, held on Monday evenings at HiTOPS, 21 Wiggins Street, beginning at 7:30 p.m. Subsequent topics will include the physical and emotional changes of puberty, AIDS, sexually transmitted diseases, sex, drugs and alcohol, and body image.

"October is National Family Sexuality Education Month," Ms. Blum noted. "Holding these workshops is one way to get the message out to parents: Talk to your kids. I think many parents will be surprised that their kids really do want to know what they think."

University Engineering Professor Lynn Russell Will Study Link Between Pollution and Rainfall

Lynn Russell

Everyday decisions like choosing to drive to work rather than take the bus or opting to turn on central heating rather than reach for a blanket could be having a more immediate impact on local weather patterns than most people realize. Preliminary evidence suggests that atmospheric pollution can inhibit rainfall, a theory which Lynn Russell, an assistant professor of chemical engineering at Princeton University, believes warrants a much closer look.

Prof. Russell was recently awarded a competitive $450,000 grant from the James S. McDonnell Foundation to study the connection between pollutant particles and changes in rainfall patterns.

"What if our fireplaces and air conditioners meant that we could no longer grow Jersey tomatoes?" writes Prof. Russell in her research proposal. "What if our hour-long weekday commutes mean increased odds of weekend rain spoiling Sunday picnic plans?"

The negative effects air pollutants can have on human health and air visibility are well known, but the theory that pollution may cause climate changes quickly and locally is relatively new, says Prof. Russell.

Researchers from Scripps Institute of Oceanography recently linked changing weather patterns in southern Asia to a dense cloud of pollution blanketing the region. The three-kilometer-deep cloud of particles, the majority of which come from human sources, is reducing sunlight and altering rainfall patterns, say researchers.

"On the east coast [of the United States], we don't have that scale of evidence, because we haven't collected all that data," says Prof. Russell. "But, we do have a few smoking guns."

One important clue, she says, is evidence linking pollutant levels to rainfall on Canada's east coast. Researchers from Arizona State University compared data on carbon dioxide, ozone, and rainfall levels gathered at a monitoring station on Sable Island off the coast of Nova Scotia.

Levels of carbon dioxide and ozone increased during the work week, consistent with the increased pollution created by daily commuters and industries operating from Monday to Friday. What was surprising, says Prof. Russell, was that the data showed that rainfall also followed a seven day cycle, with precipitation increasing on the weekends.

Although research is complicated by the difficulty of tracking where and when particles originated, Prof. Russell thinks a cause and effect relationship between pollution particles and rainfall is the most likely answer.

Particles enter the atmosphere from natural sources, such as forest fires and sea spray, but in many regions, the majority of airborne particles derive from human sources, most significantly, the combustion of fossil fuels. "I always joke about the fact that my father worked for an oil company for 50 years, which I think kind of created my job," says Prof. Russell, who at 33 has been studying atmospheric chemistry for ten years.

More aerosols in the atmosphere could mean that water in clouds is distributed over a greater number of particles, resulting in smaller cloud droplets, says Prof. Russell. Studies of the effluent streams of steam ships have shown that polluted emissions produce smaller droplets sizes in clouds downwind, creating the bright white cloud paths associated with steam ships.

"The part that's most up for grabs," says Prof. Russell, "is whether those smaller droplets mean that you get less rain."

She says smaller droplets could take longer to rain out of the atmosphere. Delaying rain could mean that the rain falls in a different region, possibly creating drought in one area and increased rainfall in another.

Understanding the impact man-made pollutants have on the weather is complicated by the fact that decreases in temperature caused by atmospheric particles absorbing sunlight can mitigate or obscure the more gradual effects of global warming.

Scientists need to understand the precise cause and effect link between man-made pollution and the weather, says Prof. Russell, before policy makers and manufacturers can take appropriate action.

"The more immediate and clear cost at the national level is the health effects of particles," she says. "The things they regulate for health effects may not be the same ones causing the rain patterns."

Prof. Russell hopes her research will lead to a better understanding of the economic cost of air pollution to the region as a result of reduced rainfall.

"Understanding what kinds of emissions we have and what kinds of particles we produce is important to understanding what kinds of impact they may have on weather," she says.

With the help of two chemical engineering graduate students, Prof. Russell will track the size and nature of particles in Princeton's atmosphere. Pollutant data will be compared with rainfall data collected in Princeton and New Brunswick.

Later in the project, she plans to use aircraft to track a cloud over time as it travels downwind from the Princeton area. Her research team will measure how cloud droplet size and number correlate with the amount and type of pollution, and how those relationships change over time. "That will give [us] a better shot at linking the effect to the cause," says Prof. Russell.

Ironically, she says, the most challenging aspect of her research will be getting the weather to cooperate. Determining what constitutes normal weather for recent history will also be difficult, especially since the area has been suffering from a drought for several years.

Prof. Russell will continue to pursue other atmospheric research but is looking forward to beginning her new project. "This is an exciting project... because of all those uncertain links. It has given us pieces to a puzzle, and we don't know how they fit together."

Daniel Kahneman
Daniel Kahneman
Wins Nobel Prize
In Economics

Daniel Kahneman, a psychologist who has pioneered the integration of research about decision-making into economics, has been awarded the 2002 Nobel Prize in economic sciences.

He has been the Eugene Higgins Professor of Psychology and professor of public affairs in the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs at Princeton University since 1993.

In its announcement, the Royal Swedish Academy of Sciences cited Prof. Kahneman "for having integrated insights from psychological research into economic science, especially concerning human judgment and decision-making under uncertainty." His work, it said, has laid the foundation for a new field of research by discovering how human judgment may take shortcuts that systematically depart from basic principles of probability.

Prof. Kahneman was awarded the economics prize along with Vernon Smith, a professor of economics and law at George Mason University. They will share the $1 million prize money.

Upon hearing of the award, Prof. Kahneman said, "I am much honored of course to receive the Nobel Prize in economic sciences. I am also keenly aware that such an honor seldom reflects the contributions of a single individual. This is particularly true in my case, since the award is given largely for work that I did many years ago with my close friend and colleague, Amos Tversky, who died in 1996. The thought of his missing this day saddens me.

Prof. Kahneman has "challenged the microfoundations of economics," said Deborah Prentice, chair of Princeton's Department of Psychology. "He has documented the shortcuts people take and the biases they have in making decisions. When people don't have a systematic way of making a decision, they do what they can, and that was news to psychologists and economists."

Before his work was published, economists had assumed humans were motivated by self-interest and made rational decisions. In addition, economics had been considered a non-experimental science that relied on real-world observations.

If people are not always capable of making rational decisions, then a lot of what economists had inferred on the basis of those assumptions really needed to be reexamined, Prof. Prentice said. "Nowadays there's a growing body of research called experimental economics that is testing economic assumptions in the laboratory, largely because of Danny's work."

Born in 1934 in Tel Aviv, Israel, Kahneman received his bachelor's degree in psychology and mathematics from Hebrew University and his Ph.D. from the University of California-Berkeley in 1961. He taught at Hebrew University from 1961 to 1978 and at the University of British Columbia from 1978 to 1986. From 1986 to 1994 he was a professor at the University of California-Berkeley.

Prof. Kahneman has dual citizenship in the United States and Israel. He is married to Anne Treisman, the James McDonnell Distinguished University Professor of Psychology at Princeton.

Since 1993, the year he arrived at Princeton, Prof. Kahneman has co-taught "Introduction to Psychology," better known as "Psych 101." "He likes introducing students to the field," Prof. Prentice said. "And he has been a good mentor to colleagues, turning his attention in recent years to collaborations, especially interdisciplinary ones."

The last member of Princeton's faculty and research staff to win the Nobel Prize in economics was senior research mathematician John Nash, who won in 1994. Prof. Kahneman's selection brings to nine the number of current faculty and research staff who have won a Nobel Prize.

Joint Commissions
To Hold "Walk in the Park"

The Joint Princeton Environmental Commission and the Friends of Princeton Open Space are co-sponsoring a "Walk in the Park" on Sunday, October 20.

To be held from 1 to 3, the walk will lead participants through parks in Princeton Borough and will provide an opportunity for residents and friends to become more familiar with the Borough's park system.

The group will explore several neighborhood parks while meandering down Borough streets. Citizens who watch over the parks will talk about significant features of the parks, what they have done to beautify the space, and any future plans.

A rain date has been set for Sunday, October 27. For more information, call 683-1023.

The Joint Princeton Environmental Commission is charged with the protection, development, and use of natural resources in the Township and Borough of Princeton. The Friends of Princeton Open Space is a non-profit organization devoted to environmental protection and the preservation of open space in Princeton.

School District Pursues Illegal Enrollment Cases

While providing a good education for local students remains the goal of the Princeton Regional School District, it has brought a complication for local school officials: illegally enrolled students.

"I have no doubt that there are many people who want to send their kids here," stated Claire Sheff Kohn, superintendent of the district, which has finished first in the state in each of the last three years in SAT scores. "Unfortunately, we have a few folks who send their kids here illegally."

According to Dr. Kohn, children of families living in either the Borough or the Township are eligible for public education. How one defines residence, however, has been interpreted in a variety of ways.

Recently, Dong Li and his wife, Zhicheng Yang, who own property in Princeton, were assessed more than $27,000 in back tuition owed by them for the education of their two children in the district.

Mr. Li and Ms. Yang could not prove that their children lived in Princeton. Nicholas Cream, an attendance officer and investigator for the district, observed their children leaving the couple's residence in West Windsor on several mornings on their way to school.

As a result, the students were removed from the district and Mr. Li and Ms. Yang were assessed a tuition rate of $55 per day per child for each of the 249 days on which their children attended a local elementary school, the most expensive case of illegal enrollment thus far in the district.

"When you have a good school district with good education, people want to send their kids there," said Dr. Kohn. "They don't always want to move to the area or can't afford to do so. Unfortunately for them, the law is pretty clear on this matter."

"There is a very specific definition regarding residence," she stated. The legal definition of residence, she clarified, is determined by the place where one is permanently domiciled. Under those terms, individuals who only pay property taxes in Princeton or who own property and visit it occasionally do not qualify for education in the Princeton Regional School District.

To date, the district has pursued six cases of illegal enrollment. According to Dr. Kohn, as soon as district officials have sufficient evidence to confirm that an attending family does not live in the district, they notify the parents.

"This issue is not about the children, the cost incurred by the district, or any effect they may or may not have upon the education of other students," stated Dr. Kohn. "This is a question of legal residence."

The district is currently accepting applications for tuition-paying students from parents who live outside the district yet wish to send their children to Princeton's schools.

Although at present the district has five tuition students, it is not accepting any new tuition students at Princeton High School due to high enrollment figures.

"I want to preserve the education that this community supports, financially and otherwise," said Dr. Kohn. "We want to keep our class size at a reasonable level."

Those tuition-paying students who are currently enrolled in lower grades within the district have been informed that they will not be permitted to attend PHS.

Tuition rates for the 2002-2003 academic year vary according to each level within the district: the kindergarten level costs $10,079 per child per year; the elementary level costs $10,851; the middle school costs $11,140; and the high school costs $11,769. In addition, the district charges $36,091 in tuition for special education students, including students with autism.

Employees of the district who do not live in Princeton are also eligible for a reduced tuition rate of $1,500 per child per year. Currently, the district has 13 reduced-tuition students. — David McNutt

Waldorf Educator to Speak On Teaching Foundations

Waldorf educator Caroline Phinney of Princeton will present "How Anthroposophy Informs the Teaching in a Waldorf School" on Wednesday, October 23 at 7 at the Waldorf School of Princeton.

The philosophical foundation upon which the pedagogical work at all Waldorf schools worldwide is based comes out of anthroposophy. Rudolf Steiner, founder of the 83-year-old Waldorf educational movement, described anthroposophy as a path of knowledge and a way for the spiritual in the human being to find its way to the spiritual in the universe.

The event is free and open to the public. The Waldorf School of Princeton is located at 1062 Cherry Hill Road. For more information, call 466-1970, ext. 26.

Unions Benefit

ment. On September 24, the School Board followed suit by unanimously ratifying the contract.

Under the contract, the district's teachers will receive an average salary increase of 4.5 percent for the 2002-2003 academic year, 4.7 percent for the 2003-2004 year, and 4.6 percent for the 2004-2005 year. The members of the other local unions — as well as unaffiliated employees — will now receive the same salary raises.

At a recent special School Board meeting, representatives of the PREA expressed their pleasure and frustration regarding the raises, while district officials offered explanations of the decision.

"We're thrilled that our colleagues benefitted from our negotiations and have received these raises," said Suzanne Thompson, one of the three co-presidents of the PREA, which represents all of the more than 300 teachers in the district. "But we're furious at being put through the grindstone in our negotiations. For ten months, we were told that no additional funds were available."

"We would have expected this during open negotiations, not after our settlement" said Nancy Schreiber, another co-president of the PREA. "It's a shock to us that there were extra funds to distribute when we were told there weren't any two months ago."

Claire Sheff Kohn, superintendent of the district, cited a desire for parity within the district and the need to create competitive compensation packages as reasons for offering the salary increases to the other unions.

"The board is taking the unusual step of rewarding employees who have gone above and beyond their duties during a difficult time in the district," she said.

After re-opening negotiations with both the PRESSA and the PRAA on the issue of salary alone, the School Board replaced current figures with the same percentages agreed upon by the PREA representatives.

A three-year contract with the PRESSA that was ratified one year ago by the School Board and the support staff union included salary percentage increases of 4 percent for the 2001-2002 school year, 4 percent for the 2002-2003 academic year, and 3.9 percent for the 2003-2004 year.

"Over time," stated Dr. Kohn, "those figures would cause them to lose ground within the district."

Negotiations with the PRAA, completed shortly before the ratification of the PREA contract, included salary increases of 4.4, 4.4, and 4.25 percent over the three-year period from 2002-2005.

"With beginning administrator salaries being so small, it is very difficult to recruit people from the ranks of the teachers," said Dr. Kohn, whose contract is not included within the administrator's salary increases.

In addition, she noted that the number of employees represented by both the PRESSA and the PRAA — approximately 150 members — is significantly smaller than the number represented by the PREA and, therefore, a salary increase for those unions would be a smaller portion of the budget.

"The increases will total approximately $30,000," said Dr. Kohn, "which is hardly a pot of gold." Due to the two-day strike by the PREA, the district saved more than $180,000 in salary.

Reached at a time when the district is preparing to enter the construction phase of its multi-year, $81.3 million renovation project at each of its six schools, the three-year contract with the PREA includes the salary increases for the teachers, a minimal increase in insurance co-pays, health insurance provisions, tuition reimbursement increases, and compensation for duties to be performed outside the classroom.

Although the salary increases are in accordance with state averages, the raises will not be received uniformly throughout the district; teachers with more experience, whose salaries are greater, will receive a smaller percentage increase in pay.

According to the 2000-2001 New Jersey School Report Card, which is issued by the state Department of Education, teachers in the Princeton Regional School District, who have a collective average of 12 years of experience, earned a median salary of $55,352 that year, more than $5,000 above the state average of $50,110.

Under the last contract, teachers' salaries increased steadily. The terms for the 2001-2002 school year provided a 3.95 percent increase over last year's salary figures.

In addition, the 1998-1999 school year — a one-year retroactive rider to the three-year contract — provided a 3.3 percent increase to the previous year, the 1999-2000 academic year enacted a 3 percent rise, and the 2000-2001 school year included a 3.7 percent salary increase.

TOWN TALK®

A forum for Princeton residents to express opinions about local and national issues

Question of the Week:

Question: What is your opinion of the Township's deer management program?

"I'm very much in favor of it. I know a lot of people don't like the idea of killing them, and I don't either, but the alternative is ridiculous. I live in the Township, and so many of my friends have had their cars hit or they have hit deer. The deer need space. There is some space for them in our town, but not enough space for hundreds and hundreds of deer." — Peter Erdman, Russell Road

"I know they are going to have birth control. That's not a bad idea instead of killing. I really like that they have the reflectors on Rosedale Road. I think it works; they've cut down a lot of deer. But in Lawrence, they don't [have reflectors], and on that side you always see the deer killed on the street. I'm against killing wild animals. As long as we keep them out of the streets, they should be fine." — Cherry McCaughan, Rosedale Road

"I think they should do more. I really think they should not be as afraid of the deer lobby and go ahead and do the programs they had planned to do. Right now, I had not heard of any hunting going on, and we really need it desperately. It may have been effective last year to some extent, but they have to follow up and keep doing it, because there are still way too many deer in the Township." — Roswitha Dey, Breatly Road

"They should continue to deal with alternative ways of dealing with the deer. The bolt killing is absolutely unacceptable." — Lesley Bush, Birch Avenue

Library

The site of the new 55,000 square-foot, three-story building at the corner of Wither- spoon and Wiggins streets was the former location of Princeton Gas Works, a man- ufactured gas plant.

According to Ms. Cifelli, the coal gasification plant was operated on the site from the mid-1850's until 1911. Tar, one of the by-products of the process, was stored in under- ground tanks. Unbeknownst to the company, coal-tar residuals and harmful chemi- cals contaminated the soil.

Ms. Cifelli added that the property was sold to Prince- ton Borough in 1958. The plant was subsequently demolished, and Princeton built a 26,000-square-foot library in its place in 1965.

The DEP later determined that it needed to investigate the sites of former manu- factured gas plants. As the former operator of the plant, PSE&G was ordered to con- duct the remediation of the site.

In related news, a lawsuit challenging the library's award of its construction con- tract was dismissed.

Last Thursday, Superior Court Judge Linda Feinberg dismissed the claims of Hes- sert Construction Corpora- tion, which included an objec- tion to the disapproval of all first round bids, and affirmed the library's award of its con- tract to Turner Construction.

"The judge reviewed all the bid-related materials, which we believed were all done lawfully and in a reasonable manner," said Robert Marti- nez, counsel to the library's board of trustees, "and she upheld those decisions."

Judge Feinberg determined that the library met the legal burden for both rejecting the first round bids and awarding the project to the lowest responsible bidder in the sec- ond round.

"We're obviously pleased with Judge Feinberg's ruling," said Mr. Levine. "We're not surprised; it was in accor- dance with what we expected. But it's nice to have it behind us."

According to Mr. Martinez, the board is now authorized to enter into an official con- tract with Turner Construc- tion, and he anticipates that that process will be com- pleted shortly.

On September 10, the library's board of trustees voted unanimously to award the construction bid for its new building to Turner Con- struction, which submitted a total bid of $11.11 million.

The winning bid, which was more than $500,000 below the construction budget of roughly $11.65 million, was selected from a total of seven submissions in the second round of bids. Hessert Con- struction Corporation was the second lowest bidder in that round.

In addition, Hessert Con- struction was the lowest bid- der in the library's first round of bids. On August 20, the board unanimously rejected all eight bids within its first round of bids, citing failure to meet one or both of two spe- cific requirements.

At the time, the library had requested that steel work must be fabricated and installed by contractors appropriately certified by the American Institute of Steel Construction and that the bid- der must be insured by a company with an A+ insurance rating as established by A.M. Best.

For the second round, the library removed the require- ment regarding the installa- tion of the steel but retained the requirement for its fabri- cation. According to library officials, Hessert Construction did not meet its requirements for the first round, and it was out-bid by Turner Construc- tion in the second round.

In its lawsuit, Hessert Con- struction had challenged both the rejection of all first round bids and the award of the bid to Turner Construction.

"We were very careful in reviewing all the bids in the second round," stated Mr. Levine previously, "and before we awarded the bid, we were very careful to make certain that the low bidder was a complete bidder that complied fully with the bid specifications."

Library officials expressed a desire to proceed with the construction of the new build- ing. Leslie Burger, library director, said, "We are pleased with the opportunity to move forward with this project."

Borough Police Stop South Brunswick Man Carrying Firearms

A 38-year-old South Brunswick man, James Michael Machinga, was arrested on October 10 at the corner of Witherspoon Street and Franklin Avenue and charged with two counts of unlawful possession of firearms. The accused was stopped after an investigation and found to be in possession of a loaded 45-caliber pistol, a 22-caliber revolver, and hollow-point bullets. While searching the accused's home during the ensuing investigation, police in South Brunswick Township confiscated a Colt AR-15 rifle. The accused was released on $10,000 bail.

Borough police made three arrests during the past week for driving while intoxicated.

Donna S. McAndrew, 31, of Pennington, was arrested the same day on Nassau Street. She was processed and released with summons for DWI after refusing to take a breathalyzer test.

In another October 11 DWI incident, Jennifer Thiel of Robbinsville was stopped on Mercer Street for failure to keep right. She was arrested when it was determined that she had been driving while under the influence of alcohol. She was released after being charged with DWI.

On October 12, Kevin Sese Kovacs, an 18-year-old Princeton man, was arrested for DWI and released with summons for the additional offense of being an underage person consuming alcohol while driving.

Underage alcohol consumption also figured in other recent Borough incidents. At 1 a.m. on the morning of October 6 police found an intoxicated 19-year-old Princeton University student passed out on a Prospect Avenue sidewalk. On October 9, another 19-year-old student, a male, was found to be highly intoxicated and in possession of alcohol at the Cottage Club on Prospect Avenue. On October 13 a woman was found to be highly intoxicated and requiring first aid after she fell and struck her head in the Tower Club on Prospect Avenue. All three victims were taken to Princeton Medical Center for treatment and released. No arrests were made in any of the cases.

Two Princeton High school students were arrested October 12 for possession of marijuana after they were seen with a plastic bag containing the substance. The students, both 15-year-old Cranbury residents, were charged with juvenile delinquency possession of marijuana.

On October 9, police were informed that a police/fire emergency call box phone, valued at $400, had been stolen from the corner of Alexander and Dickinson streets in August or September. Police have no suspects in the theft.

Two Princeton University students had their wallets stolen. A 19-year-old Walker Hall resident had his wallet taken October 10. The leather wallet, containing several credit cards, was valued at $180. A female student, also 19, had her wallet containing $179 in cash stolen while she was in class at McCosh Hall. Police have no suspects in either case.

Township Debt Has Actually Decreased, And Will Be $2 Million Less This Year

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Our Republican opponents, in a newspaper ad, claimed Princeton Township's debt escalated 121 percent in the past year. In fact, our debt, authorized and issued, has actually decreased in that period.

During the past year, the Township had to authorize bonding, up front, two thirds of the total cost of the Library, which will be $18 million. The very successful fund raising efforts will reduce this bonding authorization to $4 million, our share of the total cost.

In addition, the achievement of our goal to preserve 25 percent of open space required the bonding authorization, up front, of the purchase price of Greenway Meadows, Winant Tract and the Gulick Farm. Our success in obtaining Green Acre funds and significant private donations has reduced the Township's share of the acquisition costs to less than 20 percent for Greenway Meadows, 11 percent for the Winant Tract, and we fully expect similar success for the Gulick Farm, which is in process. Open space tax money is being used to pay our share of the acquisition costs and will not need to be bonded.

The facts are as follows: The Township debt, authorized and issued, will be $2 million less at the end of this year than at the beginning;

Our AAA bond rating from Moody's has been renewed this spring, which keeps Princeton in a very select group of New Jersey municipalities;

And Princeton continues to have the lowest effective tax rate in Mercer County.

Bernie Miller and I have earned the trust of Township taxpayers for responsible fiscal policies and practices. We pledge to continue managing your tax dollars carefully.

Committee Candidate Lists Reasons For His Running for Township Office

To the Editor of Town Topics:

For 40 years while my career and family matured, I benefited from the work of others who made Princeton a desirable place to live. I've been active in the community, on the board of the Friends of the Public Library and as Chair of the Cable TV Committee. I now have the time and energy to provide serious and committed stewardship for what those who preceded me made possible, and to work to make this wonderful community even better in the future.

Much has been accomplished; much remains to be done.

Princeton Township Committee has done a superb job of managing the financial affairs of our community. Our effective property taxes are the lowest in Mercer County. Our Moody's bond rating has been AAA for the past two consecutive years. Many residents are unaware that only 20 percent of each property tax bill goes to Princeton Township. Most goes to the School Board (50 percent) and the county (30 percent). I pledge to keep a tight rein on Township expenses and ensure that the municipal share of taxes stays at 20 percent. I will carefully review all proposals for expenditures and measure them against rigorous standards for the safety, health and well-being of the community.

Many long-time residents must leave Princeton to find suitable housing after retirement. We must provide more housing options so that residents can age in place and continue to contribute to the vitality of the community that they have helped to create. I will work hard to follow through on the steps that have been taken to provide for the development of a variety of housing to enable our mature citizens to remain in Princeton.

Township Committee has achieved its goal of preserving 25 percent of our land for parks and recreation facilities. I want to ensure continued maintenance and development of these superb facilities to provide active and passive recreation opportunities for residents of all ages.

Most of Princeton Township consists of homes on lots smaller than one acre. In a built-up community deer must cross streets to find a meal in your neighbor's garden. In this environment, deer have no natural predators other than humans in automobiles. They are hazardous to the health and safety of residents. Township Committee has recognized this and taken steps to manage the problem. I support our program to reduce the size of the herd in a safe and humane manner until we achieve an equilibrium between deer and human activity in our community.

In the near term the Valley Road School building will be used by the School Board during the rebuilding of the Princeton Schools. Although ownership has been disputed, I believe that this site belongs to the people of Princeton. I will work with the stakeholders in the community to develop a long term plan to ensure its best use for all our residents.

Money to Help Eradicate Polio World-Wide Will Be Collected by Some Trick-or-Treaters

To the Editor of Town Topics:

I wanted to alert readers in the Princetons to the upcoming Trick-or-Treat for UNICEF collection that will occur on Halloween. Some of you may remember UNICEF's bright orange boxes from your own childhood. UNICEF, for those of you unfamiliar with it, is a United Nations organization devoted to the welfare of children. For many years, UNICEF has distributed collection boxes for American children to use to gather money at Halloween to help children throughout the world. Children carry the orange collection boxes with them when they go trick-or-treating and ask their neighbors to contribute money to UNICEF.

Last year, all funds collected by UNICEF at Halloween went to help children in Afghanistan. This year, the funds collected are to be devoted to the eradication of polio worldwide. Although polio is rare in this country, it is still a major killer andcrippler of children in other parts of the world. It is highly preventable through the administration of a simple vaccine.

To assist the children of Princeton in their efforts to help other children around the world, please have a supply of change available on Halloween for when children say "Trick-or-Treat for Unicef." (Of course, the slots in the UNICEF boxes accept dollar bills too!) I must add that my 9-year-old daughter anxiously reminded me that the donation of money to UNICEF is in addition to, not instead of, edible treats that you may be providing to the trick-or-treaters!

If your child attends a school that is not participating in this program, you can order collection boxes and associated classroom materials by calling 1-800-252-kids or by logging on to: www.unicefusa.org. To guarantee arrival of materials by Halloween, they must be ordered by October 18.

constitution, all children are permitted to attend elementary and secondary school regardless of immigration status, but there are currently very few legal avenues for these children to normalize their status, go on to college once they graduate from high school, or seek employment. This is a human tragedy, and contrary to the principles on which this nation stands.

According to the 2000 U.S. Census, New Jersey ranks sixth in the country in percentage of immigrant population (15 percent). Children of immigrants make up 22 percent of the state's total school-age population. Immigrants account for 100 percent of the growth in New Jersey's population in the last decade. These immigrants are arriving in response to the growing scarcity of labor across many sectors of our economy, as our population ages. Yet, we have among us a population of mostly bilingual, U.S. educated, qualified young people, knocking on the doors of our colleges, being turned away by the unaffordable cost of higher education, and not being able to fill badly needed job vacancies, such as special Education teachers, nurses, or computer technicians.

There is currently bi-partisan legislation working its way through Congress that would correct this situation (S. 1291 the Development, Relief and Education for Alien Minors Act, or DREAM Act, and H.R. 1918). We congratulate and thank Senator Corzine and Representatives Holt and Smith for their sponsorship of these Bills to provide immigration relief to these young new Americans, and urge them to pursue their passage before Congress adjourns this year. We hope Senator Torricelli will do the same before the end of his term.

Possible Development at Shopping Center Inspires a Resident's Vigorous Dissent

To the Editor of Town Topics:

It was with horror and disbelief that I read your front page article of possible high rise development, parking garages and housing complexes to be built at the Princeton Shopping Center. [Town Topics, October 9]

My wife and I just moved our family to Princeton from a neighboring, rapidly growing township so that we could be a part of what appeared from the outside to be a fairly stable, built out small town. Unlike the township we left where farms have rapidly turned into large scale tract housing developments, we believed an established community such as Princeton would guard us from such dramatic change. There was much appeal in the idea that Princeton, because it is such a mature community, would always retain its character and any future change and growth would be slow and modest in scale. We even believed that the Princeton Future group was established for and committed to keeping development centered in the downtown area so that Princeton would become a model for a humanistic approach to town development and redevelopment. From the outside, Princeton seemed like a wonderful, intellectual and progressive town of which we could be proud to be a part and set our young family's roots.

So, it was sadness that I read on in the article to see Mayor Marchand quoted as a supporter of the proposed development at the shopping center. As a Township voter I would like to vigorously express my dissent. This type of project is entirely out of place on Harrison Street, it furthers the demise of that already endangered species "the central New Jersey downtown" and pushes Princeton along the dreadful yet oddly deliberate path of cultivating all the appeal and charm of Metro Park. Shouldn't high rise office buildings, if they don't fit downtown, be located with others of their ilk in Carnegie Center and other Route 1 office complexes? As Mr. Ford states, the current shopping center is popular because it provides what the region needs, "on a scale that is manageable." I couldn't say it better myself.

We will hope that after review, the Township Committee finds that the current zoning prohibiting high rise commercial and residential development in this neighborhood of single and small multifamily dwellings is appropriate and was written this way by previous town planners for a good reason. I am somewhat amazed by the disconnect between opinions regularly expressed in letters written to the local papers and the views expressed by Mayors Marchand and Reed and Mr. Comfort in the article. When the letters seem to invariably indicate Princetonians' desires to maintain the small town feel of Princeton why are the Mayors and Mr. Comfort stating that the proposed large scale, high rise development is what the town wants? Lest their be any confusion, my family doesn't want it!

A Financial Document From the Borough Should Clarify Scope of the Downtown Project

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Below is a letter to the Borough Administrator Bob Bruschi. This letter relates to the two full-page ads that were run in Town Topics regarding the Borough's proposed downtown development project.

Bob, this is a follow-up to the two ads that were recently in the Town Topics concerning the Borough's proposed downtown development project. First, a thank you to the professionals at Borough Hall that helped with the replies to the questions, which appeared in the September 25 edition. Second, thanks to you for meeting with me after the Borough replies were run in the October 3 edition.

Since the ads were aimed at promoting greater public knowledge of this project, I am copying this letter to the Town Topics to keep interested parties up to date with this effort. Since the second ad appeared, you and I have met and I was able to present you with additional questions that may help clarify some of the points you had addressed. You also mentioned that the Borough hopes to get detailed financial information this week on the project. I am very encouraged to hear that the Council is also seriously considering running (at their expense) an ad on the project. My understanding is that the Borough would use the same format as the previous ads; but this time the Borough would be able to address the financial questions and address the points that needed some clarification.

Having a single document published by the Borough that details the financial aspect and the overall scope of this project should benefit interested parties.

Thank you again to everyone that has helped with this effort.

A Total Freeze on Project Expenditures Is Suggested for the Next Six Months

To the Editor of Town Topics:

I saw a report about the Great Depression that indicated the initial stock market crash as not having been devastating. It was the subsequent steep slide of investment values over one year and more that brought large scale financial distress, unemployment, and public deficits. Recovery did not come quickly. The hard times lasted for many years.

We are at the end of a period of great wealth-creation – and a following collapse. But our spending patterns still show the momentum of the years past. In my opinion, the recent renovation of public buildings, the approval of $84 million for school buildings, the large public contributions committed by our municipalities to the new library, and the plans for a large garage in the center of our town all reflect the exuberance of the years past. I personally think “the party is over.” I personally suggest greatest fiscal restraint at this time, at least until we see more clearly into the future.

The School Board has not accepted the major construction bids yet. The Borough has not placed the contract for the new garage yet. Construction for the new library has not started yet.

I suggest a total freeze on project expenditures for the next six months.

Don't tell me it can't be done. Any private individual would stop in the middle of the construction of his own home if he doesn't have the money for it any longer, and would definitely stop building another library, study room, or garage, especially when the design was quite fancy to start with, till the money starts flowing again. The availability of a bank loan or bond is no excuse. It has to be paid back, too.

If the economy really recovers strongly, we can afford the project delays. If the economy does not recover, we, the citizens, will be glad to have less commitments and hopefully lower taxes. There are a growing number of people among us who fear for their jobs, have lost their jobs, have lost good part of their retirement savings, or are called upon to help those who already face problems.

What do the merchants say? Is their business booming? Can they stand further weakening of consumer spending when taxes go up?

HELMUT SCHWAB
Westcott Road

As you know, I have appeared for many months now before Borough Council questioning the need for this 500+ space-parking garage in town. At times I must seem to be representing the very opposite opinion from what you have heard from Princeton Future. They say that the town needs to grow now more because “it wants to be a city.” I humbly disagree. In the process I have been called by them a “gadfly” and a “McCarthyite.”

My parking shelf, which I proposed one night as a minimum solution, was termed “a cruel hoax” by Robert Geddes of Princeton Future because it did not address all of the niceties of the massive costly building that was proposed. Somehow those words rang out to me, not for my own idea, but for what has been proposed by Princeton Future for our town.

At first Princeton Future was sponsored mainly by Princeton University. Now it is even financed entirely by them. They pretend before you to represent the people of each of the Princeton core area zones and their neighbors in the downtown. I sincerely ask you who do these people really represent?

I believe Princeton Future now represents the force that brought the sprawl of the greater Princeton area this past decade. That development force is Princeton University, which bought and sold half of Plainsboro Township, and now is moving into West Windsor on the Samoff tract.

Princeton Future never started with a whole. They were biased in never considering the responsibilities of one-half of the downtown, where Princeton University supplies no accessible parking for their guests or to its construction workers. Yet, they are the greatest draw to the town with over 450,000 guests per year.

“Cruel hoax?” Wouldn't it be a cruel hoax if the town built a huge garage, and didn't know that it was largely built to supply Princeton University's ever-increasing demand for parking. I firmly believe that it is Princeton Future's function to achieve that end as well as meeting other goals of its sponsor like more downtown residential housing for the faculty and staff. This constitutes operating as a public relations firm.

It is time for the University to enter the equation about downtown parking, and to talk about their long lost responsibility in helping us with this common problem. They should start by providing for their own parking needs downtown, preferably on the William Street lot. Only then will it be time for the town to see if it really needs a $10,000,000 parking garage.

Use of Valley Road Property for Seniors Would Be Beneficial to All in Princeton

To the Editor of Town Topics:

We are appalled by the article in the September 25 edition of Town Topics which made it quite clear that the Princeton Township Committee has not even given any serious thought to the final disposition of the Valley Road School building.

After studying the condition of the building a few years ago, we were told that it would cost as much to fix it up as it would to replace it. We were given a whole litany of needed repairs required for either comfort or safety. At that point the Township committed itself to the construction of the new Township Hall which has cost the taxpayers $15 million so far, a shameful two-thirds over the original estimate.

Now we have a largely vacant building which should be torn down, a ballooning debt, a lack of housing for our senior citizens and a dispute over ownership between the Township Committee and the School Board that has been going on for years without resolution. Does all this really catch the present Township Committee by surprise? Why is there no plan in place for the next step? Will we now be told that the building is suitable for other public functions?

We are advocating a solution that would solve several problems at once, starting with the demolition of the Valley Road Building, the sale of the property to a private developer that will be required to build senior citizen housing.

First of all, the ownership dispute must be solved. However it is settled, it still belongs to the “inhabitants of Princeton.” The best answer is to sell the property and let the legal experts decide how to divide up the proceeds. Whichever entity ends up with the money or portion should use it to reduce the debt on us the taxpayers. This would also put the property back on the tax rolls.

While the fine points of ownership are being settled, the Planning Board should be working on a zoning change that would require senior housing to be built on the site. This would put seniors in close proximity to medical facilities, police, fire protection, shopping and, at least for now, the library. We support a branch library, at the very least, remaining in the shopping center.

It seems to us that the use of this property for the senior citizens would be beneficial to all concerned. The taxpayers desperately need relief, the seniors' need for town housing near goods and services, and the derelict building must be removed. If it is left in place, it will become like an empty closet in a home, soon filled up with miscellany; and we will have to pay for refurbishing it in addition to everything else.

All this requires the Township and the School Board to talk to each other and work together. We will push very hard to bring that about.

HISTORICAL BENEFIT: Joan Ellis, left, describes to Gail Stern, director of the Historical Society of Princeton, some of the features of the luxury condo in the Florida Keys that she and her husband Bill are offering for a one-week stay as a live auction item for the Historical Society's benefit, "A Swing in Time," on November 16.

Historical Society to Host "Swing in Time" Benefit

"A Swing In Time" will be the theme of the Historical Society of Princeton's annual black-tie benefit dinner and dance, which will be held on Saturday, November 16 from 6:30 to midnight.

To be held at Princeton Day School, the dance will benefit the Historical Society's educational programs.

Co-chairs Anne Weber and Maynett Brethaupt and their committee have invited patrons to wear watches that have special significance to them, regardless of the time period in which the timepieces were made.

At the benefit event, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Scheide, long-time supporters of the Historical Society, will receive this year's award for individual leadership, while Glenmede Trust Company of New Jersey will be recognized for corporate leadership.

Sandy Maxwell's band will provide music for dancing. Candace Woodward-Clough will provide brief, basic instruction for those guests who do not know how to dance the Lindy Hop, Savoy Swing, or other Swing era dances.

Another new feature this year will be a live auction of a few select items, including a one-week stay at a vacation home in the Florida Keys, a private appraisal at historic Maybury Hill, and a Miele Solaris Electro Plus vacuum, which will come with free delivery and vacuum of the winning bidder's home.

The silent auction, a traditional feature of the benefit, will feature gift certificates and merchandise from area restaurants and businesses. Eric Martin, chef and general manager of Rat's Restaurant at Grounds for Sculpture, is offering a private kitchen tour along with a dinner gift certificate. Susan and Keith Coleman will host a black-tie dinner for ten people in their new home in scenic Solebury Township, Bucks County.

Tickets for the event, which cost $185, may be obtained by calling 921-6748.

The Historical Society of Princeton, located at 158 Nassau Street in the Bainbridge House, is a museum and library dedicated to interpreting the history of Princeton. It is open, free of charge, from 12 to 4 on Tuesday through Sunday from March through December, and weekends only in January and February. For more information, visit www.princetonhistory.org.

BRICK WALK GIFTS: Herb Hobler, treasurer of the Spirit of Princeton, recently presented the Princeton Public Library staff with 11 volumes containing the original 2,500 subscription forms for bricks now installed in the 20th Century Recognition Walk in Palmer Square. ## ART

University Art Museum To Open Cezanne Show

Despite Paul Cezanne's apparent disregard for his watercolors — he is said to have discarded them or stacked them haphazardly in his studio — over 600 of these works on paper have survived.

This number includes 16 examples to be featured in "Cezanne in Focus: Watercolors from the Henry and Rose Pearlman Collection," which will open at the Princeton University Art Museum on Saturday, October 19 and remain on view through January 12, 2003.

On loan to the museum since 1976 but rarely shown due to their sensitivity to light, this small but exceptional group of watercolors is considered to be one of the finest assemblages of Cezanne watercolors.

The Pearlman collection, which was begun in the 1940s by Henry Pearlman, spans Cezanne's entire career and consists primarily of landscapes as well as still lifes and an early scene from Virgil's Aeneid. The landscapes include frequently depicted Provencal motifs such as Mont Sainte-Victorie, the park of Chateau Noir, the Bibemus rock quarry, and Cezanne's only known representation of Aix-en Provence.

Related Paintings,

Complementing these works in the exhibition are related paintings and drawings by Cezanne from the Pearlman collection as well as a sketchbook page lent by the Philadelphia Museum of Art.

Intimate in scale and presentation, the exhibition celebrates the publication of the first scholarly catalogue on these watercolors. The work is fully illustrated in color and includes introductory essays by Matthew Simms, assistant professor of art history at Emory University, and Faith Zieske, conservator of works on paper at the Philadelphia Museum of Art, as well as in-depth entries by graduate students in the department of art and archaeology at Princeton University.

A series of lectures and events are planned in conjunction with the exhibit.

October 19 Lecture

Mr. Simms will present a lecture, titled "Color and Drawing: Cezanne and After," on Saturday, October 19 at 5 in McCosh 50 at Princeton University. Kathryn Tuma, assistant curator of the Drawing Center in New York, will present "The Late Watercolors of Paul Cezanne" on Tuesday, November 5 at 4:30 in McCormick 101 at the University.

Gallery talks by Laura Giles, associate curator of prints and drawings at the museum, entitled "Cezanne Watercolors from the Henry and Rose Pearlman Collection" are scheduled for Friday, October 25 at 12:30 and Sunday, October 27 at 3. Scott Allan, a Ph.D. candidate in the department of art and archaeology, will present "Cezanne in Focus" on Friday, November 8 at 12:30 and Sunday, November 10 at 3.

Chamber Opera

In addition, performances of Cezanne's Doubt, a chamber opera by Daniel Rothman, will be held on Tuesday, October 22 and Wednesday, October 23 at 8 in Taplin Auditorium of Fine Hall.

The text for the chamber opera — which will feature solo voice, clarinet, trumpet, cello and audio and video processing — is based on Cezanne's letters and one of the painter's favorite poems, Baudelaire's Une Charogne. The performers include Richard Lalli, David Smeyers, Wadada Leo Smith, Ted Mook, and Kent Clelland.

Tickets are $10 general admission and free for Friends of the Princeton University Art Museum, faculty members, and students. To order tickets, call 258-1742.

In Search of Cezanne, a film by Allan Miller, will be shown on Friday, November 1 at 6 in McCosh 10 at the University. The film will be followed by a panel discussion with the director, art historian Mary Tompkins Lewis, and museum preparator Calvin Brown.

Auxiliary Exhibit

An auxiliary exhibition, "Earth's Beauty Revealed: The Nineteenth Century European Landscape," has been organized in conjunction with the Cezanne exhibit.

Gallery talks by Peter Barberie, a Ph.D. candidate in the department of art and archaeology, entitled "Sketches, Studies, Pictures, and Views: Nineteenth-Century Landscape in Europe" will be given on December 6 at 12:30 and December 8 at 3.

The Princeton University Art Museum, located in the middle of the University campus next to Prospect House and Gardens, is free and open to the public. Museum hours are Tuesday through Saturday from 10 to 5 and Sunday from 1 to 5.

Due to ongoing construction, visitors should use the staff entrance on the west side of the building, across the green from Dodd Hall. For information, call 258-3788 or visit www.princetonartmuseum.org.

RARE EXHIBITION: Created in 1906 shortly before his death, this watercolor by Paul Cezanne, entitled "Still Life with Carafe, Bottle, and Fruit," is among the works that will be featured in "Cezanne in Focus," an exhibition that will appear at the Princeton University Art Museum from October 19 through January 12.

Arts Council to Feature Paintings and Totems

The Arts Council of Princeton is presenting an exhibit of paintings and totems by Deidre Prosen in its WPA Gallery through Tuesday, October 29.

An opening reception to which the public is invited will be held on Friday, October 18, from 6 to 8.

Early in her career, Ms. Prosen studied in Paris and went on to graduate with a Masters in Fine Arts from the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee (UWM) in 1995. She has received numerous awards for her paintings including the Top Purchase Award at the 20th Annual Exhibition in Goldsboro, N.C., and the Award for Excellence at the UWM Alumni Art Competition.

Ms. Prosen has also exhibited in numerous solo and group shows, and her most recent solo exhibition was at the Stephen Gang Gallery in New York. In addition, Ms. Prosen has shown her work at Trenton Makes in Trenton, The Foyer Gallery in Wichita, Kan., and Walkers Point Center for Art in Milwaukee, Wisc.

In this exhibit, Ms. Prosen displays both large, expressive figurative paintings as well as smaller relief pieces or totems that are created out of found objects and paint. Popular culture is a direct inspiration for the imagery in Ms. Prosen's paintings and totems, as are her dreams and everyday experiences.

"My interest, frustration, and curiosity about the actions and interactions of people in the world around me provide the primary driving force for the work," said Ms. Prosen. "I weave a playfulness into my work so that the viewer is not entirely overwhelmed by the darker nature of what is presented. It is my aim that the end product of these juxtapositions are works that draw the viewer in with their bright colors and busy compositions to reveal another level of meaning once they are engaged with the piece."

The WPA Gallery is located at the Arts Council of Princeton in the Paul Robeson Building, 102 Witherspoon Street. Gallery hours are Monday through Friday, 9 to 5, and on weekends by appointment. For information, call 924-8777 or visit www.artscouncilofprinceton.org.

"Varying Visions" to Show Member and Guest Artwork

Gallery 14, a cooperative fine art photographic gallery in Hopewell, will present "Varying Visions," an exhibit of guest photographers as part of its celebration of its first full year of exhibitions.

The exhibit of both member and guest works will open Friday, October 18 with a reception for the photographers and the public at 6, and it will run through Sunday, November 17. On Saturday, October 19 from 1 to 3, the photographers will appear at the gallery to discuss their work.

Frank Magalhaes of Princeton will display landscape and architectural archival ink-jet prints from images taken with a digital camera. Selena Persico will show a series of platinum still life prints that explore issues related to relationships and aging.

Peter Roos, a guest to Gallery 14, will present works in platinum and palladium prints, making delicate expressions of his studies of flowers. In contrast, member Robert Borsuk will show prints from his series "Tools," a photographic study of the blacksmith shop at the Peters Valley Craft Center.

Burgos Landscape, a few hundred miles from Madrid, was photographed by Ingeborg Snipes and Barbara Warren in their recent trip to Spain. The bright green wheat and rusty red earth will make a striking contrast shown in the varying views of both artists.

Ken Kaplowitz, a professor of photography at the College of New Jersey, will exhibit his shadow studies alongside David Miller, who will present two manipulated Polaroid views of St. Basil's Cathedral in Moscow.

Studies of natural and human-made structures will be displayed by Williams van der Veer in large-scale black and white prints, while Ed Greenblat will present his black and white infrared landscapes.

Nancy Ori, a nationally known commercial and fine art photographer who has taught at Ansel Adams' workshops, will show a large color architectural print. Jay Goodkind, a Gallery 14 member from New Hope, will exhibit his studies of snow scenes.

Images by Don Rogers, guest photographer from Buckingham, Pa., will feature color landscapes from Utah. His work will be complemented by Jay Anderson's two award-winning black and white studies of an old schoolroom.

HiTOPS to Sponsor "Love Makes a Family"

HiTOPS, Health Interested Teens' Own Program on Sexuality, is hosting a display of a photo-text exhibit, "Love Makes a Family: Portraits of Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, and Transgender People and Their Families."

Sponsored in order to promote a safe and accepting environment for gay, lesbian, bisexual, and transgender (GLBT) people, the exhibit will be on display at the Princeton Public Library through Sunday, October 20. It will then appear at Princeton High School from Monday, October 21 through Thursday, October 31.

The exhibition features photographs by Gigi Kaeser that depict a variety of GLBT families of all races in familiar family settings. The photos are accompanied by text edited by co-creator Peggy Gillespie from in-depth interviews with family members who speak candidly about their lives, their relationships, and the ways in which they cope with the realities of prejudice, bias, and intolerance on a day-to-day basis.

HiTOPS is a non-profit organization whose mission is to promote adolescent health and well-being. To these ends, HiTOPS provides on-site clinical services for teens and educational outreach programs in schools and community settings. HiTOPS seeks to empower adolescents with knowledge and risk reduction strategies so they have the skills they need to make responsible decisions regarding their relationships and sexual health.

HiTOPS' goals include the promotion of rights, respect, and responsibility for all adolescents. In addition to clinical and educational programs for all youth, HiTOPS also runs a support group for GLBT teens and their allies as well as a support group for parents, families, and friends of lesbians and gays.

Seminary's Erdman Gallery To Exhibit Local Artist

William Brower, a Princeton poet, sculptor, and painter and former member of Princeton Theological Seminary's Speech Department faculty, will exhibit his sculpture and paintings at Erdman Gallery from October 21 through November 30.

The exhibit will open with a reception for the artist and a gallery talk on Monday, October 21 from 4:30 to 6:30.

Entitled "Mountain Tops," the exhibition will feature sculpture in miniature, incorporating recycled stonework from renovations of the Princeton University campus into the art form of bonseki.

Bonseki, literally meaning "tray stone" in Japanese, refers to the traditional Japanese art form in which miniature landscapes are created by using natural stones and white sand to represent scenes in nature. Mr. Brower's interest, he says, "stresses the potential salutary effect of meditating on nature in miniature."

Beginning its fourth exhibition year, Erdman Gallery exhibits a wide variety of media, including paintings, sculpture, and fabric arts, by local and national artists.

The gallery is located in Erdman Hall, 20 Library Place in Princeton. Gallery hours are Mondays through Saturdays from 8:30 to 4:30 and Sundays from 2:30 to 6:30. For more information, call 497-7990.

Annual Faculty Exhibit Running at Lawrenceville

The Marguerite and James Hutchins Gallery in the Gruss Center of Visual Arts at the Lawrenceville School will feature the annual faculty exhibition through Saturday, November 2.

Featured artists and faculty members include Brian Daniell, Allen Fitzpatrick, Jamie Greenfield, Ed Robbins, Leonid Siveriver, and William Vandever.

Gallery hours are 9 to noon and 1 to 4:30, Monday through Friday, except Wednesday, during which it is open 9 to noon only. The gallery is also open Saturday from 9 to noon.

The Lawrenceville School is located off Route 206 in Lawrenceville.

The Gallery at MCCC Showing Faculty Work

The paintings of Mel Leipzig, a professor of painting and art history at Mercer County Community College (MCCC) for almost 35 years, will be featured in an exhibition at the college's gallery through November 7.

Entitled "The Faculty," the exhibit focuses on paintings of faculty members who are colleagues of the artist. Gallery talks are scheduled for Thursday, October 17 at 7 and Wednesday, October 30 at 12:15.

In 1968, Mr. Leipzig began painting in the realist style for which he is best known. His earliest works were of his family, friends, and students posed in detail-rich interiors and dramatically ordered landscapes. By 1996, he had begun a series on artists in their studios and working spaces.

Mr. Leipzig completed some of his earliest MCCC faculty paintings that year, including a painting of the late MCCC photography professor, Lou Draper. That work, entitled "Lou," was recently acquired by the Whitney Museum of American Art for its permanent collection.

Mr. Leipzig earned a BFA from Yale University, where he studied under Josef Albers and James Brooks, and an MFA from Pratt Institute, where his instructors included Nan Benedict and Ralph Wickiser.

He began his career at MCCC in 1968 under Sam Willig, former chairman of the MCCC Art Department, to whom Leipzig has dedicated this exhibit. "It was Sam who hired me and had faith in me as both a teacher and an artist," said Mr. Leipzig. "I am forever grateful to him."

His work has been shown extensively throughout the United States in solo and group shows and is next scheduled to be displayed as part of "Art of the 20th Century," at the New York City Armory. His many scholarships and awards include a Fulbright Scholarship, a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts, and four NJ State Council on the Arts artist fellowships, including one for 2002.

"It's both appropriate and a great honor to be showing this body of Mel's 'Faculty' work here in The Gallery," said Tricia Fagan, curator of the MCCC Gallery. "He creates his work with the same focus, dedication, generosity, and joyful knowledge of art that he brings to everything else he does in his life. By including some of his beautiful preliminary studies and early drawings alongside the final works, we hope to offer a modest window on the singular vision of this remarkable artist."

The Gallery at Mercer County Community College, located on the West Windsor Campus at 1200 Old Trenton Road, is funded in part by the Mercer County Cultural and Heritage Commission through a grant from the New Jersey State Council on the Arts.

Gallery hours are Tuesday through Thursday from 11 to 3, Wednesday evenings from 6 to 8, and Thursday evenings from 7 to 9. For more information, call 586-4800, ext. 3589.

FACULTY ART: "The Rehearsal," a painting by Mercer County Community College faculty member Mel Leipzig, is among his works to be featured in an exhibition through November 7.

Aerial Photography Takes Flight in Show

The Gallery at Plainsboro Public Library will feature "Mostly Clouds," an exhibit displaying aerial photography by Jessica Stearns through Thursday, November 7.

Gathered in the course of both commercial and private flying assignments, the collection represents the artist's passion for both flying and capturing natural phenomena on film.

A gallery talk at which patrons can meet the artist will take place on Sunday, October 13 at 3.

Ms. Stearns, who held a desire to fly from an early age, began flying lessons at the age of 16. While still in high school, Ms. Stearns began taking pictures with an old Argus 75 camera. Her passions developed when she joined the Air Force and flew transports around the world.

During the war in Vietnam, Ms. Stearns carried two cameras; one for her job as an aerial combat photographer, and the other for personal impressions.

Throughout her 20-year career in the Air Force and 16 years as a Continental Airlines pilot, Ms. Stearns continued to be captivated by the play of light in clouds, the variances created by differing atmospheric conditions, and the geometry and textures of nature.

"Staring out the cockpit window is my in-flight movie," said Ms. Stearns. "There are patterns you had no idea existed. There are perspectives on geography and life that come alive."

The Plainsboro Public Library is located at 641 Plainsboro Road in Plainsboro. The gallery is open daily: Monday and Friday, 9 to 5:30; Tuesday through Thursday, 9 to 8:30; and Saturday and Sunday, 10 to 5. For more information, call 275-2897 or visit www.lmxac.org/plainsboro.

THEATER REVIEW

Philosophy and Politics Prevail in "Men Without Shadows," Rarely Produced WW II Drama by JeanPaul Sartre at Intime

First Lady Laura Bush, who last week argued a case for the apolitical nature of literature, presumably has never seen Men Without Shadows (Morts sans Sepultures, 1946), Jean-Paul Sartre's rarely produced drama about five prisoners and their torturers, which is currently playing at Theatre Intime on the Princeton University campus. More politics and philosophy than theater, Men Without Shadows serves as a heavily loaded vehicle for Sartre's existentialist philosophy and for his speculations on collaborationists and their victims in Nazi-occupied France during World War II.

Sartre fans — perhaps still in university philosophy and French literature departments? — will recognize here many of the distinguished philosopher's favorite subjects and abiding concerns. More naturalistic, less abstract than Sartre's most famous play No Exit (Huis Clos), Men Without Shadows nonetheless shares similar setting, situation and themes with that earlier work. Both plays focus on characters trapped in a room. In No Exit the room is the afterlife, a hell of Sartre's and his characters' own creation. In Men Without Shadows, the room is in a French village, the characters are literally shackled and their jailers are in another room in the same building.

Physical and Psychological Terrain

Sartre, who had spent nine months in a German prison camp in 1940-41 before escaping to Paris and joining the French Underground, knew first-hand the physical and psychological terrain he depicts here. The "huis clos" of the earlier play's title is a legal term referring to the period when the courts are closed, and indeed the characters of both plays have no recourse, no justice, no way to appeal or change their fates.

Through essays, novels and plays, Sartre argued that in a world with no gods and no fixed standards of conduct, human beings are "condemned to be free." His characters are forced to choose their own standards of behavior and then live by them without compromise. He believed that, despite the absence of ideal choices, one must be politically engaged in making the choices that will determine events. The main characters of Men Without Shadows struggle with the purposelessness and absurdity of their situations, the ethical dilemmas of commitment to a course of action and the problems of responsible political involvement.

The play's two acts of two scenes each alternately depict events in the room of the prisoners, then in the room of their captors. The prisoners, confined to the downstage half of the playing area, include three men (Owen Tanzer, Paulo Quiros and Derek Chan), a woman (Nicole Muller) and a 16-year-old boy (Branden Jacobs-Jenkins). They are later joined by their leader (Charif Shanahan), who is able to come and go unshackled, undetected by the guards.

The three captors (Emma Worth, Matthew Leffel and Matthieu Boyd), ensconced upstage in another room of the same building, drink heavily, quarrel, plot how to extort information from the prisoners and struggle to rationalize their actions in the context of war and the Nazi occupation of France.

Much background information remains vague, but the prisoners, members of the French Resistance, speak of a failed struggle in which 300 people have died: "We should have succeeded." These five know they will be executed the following day. Plot here is subordinate to Sartre's philosophy and his close scrutiny of these characters and their conduct in facing torture and death. The play is not without interest and dramatic tension — in the interactions among the prisoners and between the prisoners and their captors.

Dilemmas and Conflicts

Ethical dilemmas and angry conflict arise over how to respond to the torture, whether to provide any information to the captors, and how to prevent the boy from giving away valuable information. But the prisoners wonder whether any of these issues matter in the face of death.

Young Francis is frenetic, uncontrollably nervous, fighting the fact that he must soon die. Sorbier complains loudly and futilely about the unfairness of his plight. Canoris, the Greek, the senior member of the group, remains calm and philosophical. "Each man must do what he can to suffer as little as possible," he concludes. He decries the uselessness of his life and asserts, "We have earned the right to rest." Henry also laments, "It shouldn't have turned out like this... The cause has rejected us because we are no longer useful." He sadly realizes, "I'm not indispensable." But he retains his pride in refusing to succumb to his torturers.

Lucy, the fifth prisoner and Francis' older sister, has been beaten and assaulted by the torturers, and she is beyond feeling: "None of this matters any more." Lucy and John, in the past, have been lovers, but she announces that she can never again feel love or any emotion. Her eyes are dry: "It really doesn't matter any more. I will die alone." And a rivalry between Henry and John for Lucy's affections becomes inconsequential.

Theater Review

Under the direction of Princeton University Junior Kristopher Kersey, the undergraduate Intime company has taken on the challenges of a serious, little-known work by a major writer and thinker of the 20th century, and has brought this play to life with care and imagination.

Production values here are high, with an effective two-tiered set, placing the prisoners' quarters downstage and the ominous drawing of a human figure, a map outline and two frameless windows dominate the upstage wall. Ana Ivascu's minimalist set design, along with David Bengali's evocative lighting, effectively establish the physical and emotional terrain of this drama.

Sound design by Rachael Timinsky is impressive in its extensive 1940's radio music, frequently used as an ironically upbeat counterpoint to the grim onstage occurrences. Mr. Kersey and Ms. Timinsky, however, need to provide more effective balance to avoid drowning out the characters' important lines. The dialogue provides enough of a challenge for attentive audience members without loud radio music, and later the sound of falling rain, making comprehension at times almost impossible.

Mr. Kersey has cast and rehearsed his performers with care and intelligence. The three torturers are less fully drawn, less credibly three-dimensional than the prisoners, but Mr. Boyd provides an especially threatening and memorable portrayal as the sadistic Clochet. Mr. Quiros, Mr. Chan, Mr. Shanahan and Ms. Muller are all focused and convincing in creating these troubled characters under duress. Diction and clarity were problems with Mr.

Quiros at times, and especially with Mr. Jacobs-Jenkins, whose character is just too frenzied and speaks too rapidly to be understood. The anguished protestations of Mr. Tanzer's Sorbier also need a bit more nuance and some toning down to make this character credible.

Men Without Shadows provides a bleak but intriguing evening in the theater, with rather grim conclusions about our chances of performing any meaningful actions or making significant sense out of our existence. This play will not fulfill everyone's idea of an entertaining evening in the theater, but kudos to Kristopher Kersey and the Intime company for capably taking on the challenge and offering this rare opportunity.

—Donald Gilpin

Recital Will Showcase Linked Musical Styles

The connections between the African American and Jewish musical traditions will be the theme of a concert at the Unitarian Universalist Congregation of Princeton on Sunday, October 20, at 3.

"Songs of Faith, New Hebrew Music Meets African-American Spirituals" will feature performances by mezzo soprano Joan Waite, of Princeton, and performing and recording artist Zoe Zak, of Woodstock, N.Y. Ms. Waite will be accompanied by pianist Donival Brown, and Ms. Zak will be accompanied by Studio Stu, playing a washtub bass.

Proceeds from the concert will benefit local charities, including Trenton Area Soup Kitchen, HomeFront, Mercer Street Friends, Crisis Ministry, Womanspace, and Isles of Trenton.

Ms. Waite has performed with the Jubilee Singers' Ensemble of Rider University's Westminster Choir College. In her solo recitals, she performs art songs in several languages, as well as African American spirituals. Ms. Waite, who holds a master's degree in cultural anthropology, also gives lectures on African and African American art at schools, colleges, and community organizations.

Ms. Zak has recorded more than 20 albums and CDs blending ancient and modern influences. Her most recent CD, recorded with the Zoe B. Zak Ensemble, sets ancient Hebrew texts to modern music. She was recently commissioned to write a musical interpretation of the Sufi poet Attar.

Tickets are $20 and can be purchased beginning at 2:30 on the day of the recital. The Unitarian Church is located at 50 Cherry Hill Road, near Route 206. For directions or information, call 924-1604.

Dance Work Will Honor Survivors of Tragedies

Connections Dance Theater will perform a new work entitled "September Twelfth" on Friday, October 25, at 8 p.m. in the Frist Theater on the Princeton University Campus. A second performance will take place on Friday, November 1, at 8 p.m. in the Fahs Theater of the Unitarian Church of Princeton at 50 Cherry Hill Road.

The production is a collaboration of Connections Dance Theater's artistic director and choreographer, Liliana Attar; plastic artist Laura Tabakman; and playwright Sonya Aronowitz.

The multimedia production is a tribute to survivors and victims' survivors of September 11 and other tragedies. It examines ways in which individuals and society can unite, rebuild, and renew, and it focuses on using positive emotions to find meaning in tragedy.

"We strongly believe that the country, and the world, needs to talk about the future instead of the past in order to deal with these terrible events," says Ms. Attar. "This unique performance...seeks to show the resilience of the human spirit in the face of disaster and the potential for a renewed and more peaceful society."

Admission to the performances costs $20. Entry for children, students, and seniors costs $15. To reserve space for the October 25 performance, call 258-1742. To reserve space for the November 1 performance or for information, call Connections Dance Theater at 895-2981.

ish Life* from October 26 to November 10.

Mr. Hirsch's autobiographi-

England with German-speaking parents.

Kinderszenen: Scenes
From Childhood, to be per-

the conjectured meeting of his parents in Berlin during the time of Hitler's rule and scenes from his childhood in England. The opening night performance will also include a pre-show cabaret concert
by Sanda Wegl, who will sing
music from 1930s Berlin.

Dubrovnik, scheduled for October 27, revolves around
Mr. Hirsch's life in America and his marriage to the daughter of a rabbi. Rosh Hoshonoh, to be performed on November 2, relates his discovery of relatives who escaped from Berlin to Shanghai in 1939.

In Yom Kippur, scheduled for November 3, a New York yoga center provokes an exploration of the spiritual avenues available to an assimilated, modern Jew. The November 9 performance,
"Border Crossings," follows
Mr. Hirsch as he visits Germany with his uncle, who escaped from Auschwitz 35 years earlier.

The final performance in the series, *The Imperial Wor-
Museum*, scheduled for November 10, focuses on the 80th birthday of his mother, the death of his father, and what it means to be at war with one's homeland.

Mr. Hirsch is the founder and artistic director of the New Works Project, an experimental theater company in New York City. He is the recipient of two New York
Foundation for the Arts fellowships and the Robert &
Adele S. Blank Jewish Arts
Award. He has also published a memoir entitled Last Dance of the Hotel Kempinski: Creating a Life in the Shadow of History.

Performances, which last approximately one hour, are Saturdays at 8 and Sundays at 5. Tickets are $15 per show or $50 for the series.

Scott McCoy

Scott McCoy to Sing Songs by Schubert

Tenor Scott McCoy will perform two of Franz Schubert's most revered song cycles — Die Schöne Müllerin and Winterreise — October 17 and 20 in Bristol Chapel on the campus of Westminster Choir College.

He will be joined by Claude Cyerman, piano, in performing Die Schöne Müllerin on Thursday, October 17 at 8 and on Sunday, October 20 at 4. Scott McCoy made his Carnegie Hall debut singing Stravinsky's Pulcinella in 1990, followed in the same year by his Chicago Orchestra Hall debut singing Messiah — just two of the over 60 concert works in his repertoire. He has recently appeared as guest soloist with the New Jersey Symphony, the Orchestra of St. Luke's, the Honolulu, Colorado, Albany, Savannah and Battle Creek symphonies.

On stage, Dr. McCoy specializes in the Mozart, Rossini, and French repertoire and has performed with such companies as the Théâtre Lyrique d'Europe, Western Plains Opera, Iowa Opera Theatre, Opera Roanoke, and the Atlanta Repertory Opera.

Dr. McCoy has won first place in two district Metropolitan Opera Auditions, the Singer's Showcase Auditions, the Salzburg Mozarteum Competition, and has been a national finalist in both the Liederkranz Foundation Competition and the Oratorio Society of New York Solo Competition.

A native of France, Mr. Cyerman graduated from the Conservatoire National Supérieur de Musique in Paris with highest honors.

Claude Cyerman performs extensively as a recitalist and chamber musician. He was a soloist with several major orchestras including the Radio France Orchestra, Orchestre des Pays de la Loire, and Orchestre Symphonique de Limoges.

He is regularly invited to perform at major festivals and give master classes in France, Germany, Italy, Sweden, Japan, and Israel. He is also a frequent guest on French National Radio and the BBC.

Tickets for each recital are $10 for adults and $8 for students and seniors. To order, call the Westminster box office weekdays between 9 and 4:30 at 921-2663.

Baroque Music Concert To Feature Violinist Manze

Baroque violinist Andrew Manze will conduct the Academy of Ancient Music in a program featuring works by Vivaldi, Handel, and Telemann at McCarter Theatre on Monday, October 21, at 8 p.m. The concert is part of Mr. Manze's final U.S. tour as associate director of the baroque ensemble.

The Academy of Ancient Music performs baroque and classical works on period instruments. The ensemble has made more than 200 recordings, including recordings of works by Haydn, Beethoven, and J.S. Bach and the only recording on period instruments of Mozart's complete Symphonies.

Mr. Manze became associate director of the Academy of Ancient Music in 1996. A Cambridge classicist by training, he specializes in repertoire from 1610 to 1830. To reproduce the music as it might originally have sounded, he uses baroque bows; a 1663 Girolamo Amati violin, for works written prior to 1700; and a 1783 Gagliano violin, for later works.

Mr. Manze is also artist-in-residence for the Swedish Chamber Orchestra. He will be leaving the Academy of Ancient Music to become music director of the English Concert.

Tickets, which cost $31 and $34, are available through McCarter Theatre. Call 258-2787 or visit www.mccarter.org.

Singer Will Perform At Yoga, Health Center

Folk-rock singer and songwriter Sharon Silverstein will perform at Princeton Center for Yoga and Health on October 25 at 8:30 p.m. She will be accompanied by saxophone player Jacques Chancy, guitarist Jack Talpos, and percussionist Joe Mathai.

Ms. Silverstein will sing music she has written and recorded over the last year and a half. Her music discusses how a person can find inner peace, create a peaceful environment, and promote a peaceful world.

A native of Old Bridge, she has been performing in New Jersey and Pennsylvania since 1984. She earned a bachelor of music degree and a New Jersey teaching certificate from Mason Gross School of the Arts. She has taught instrumental music in New Jersey public schools for the past 14 years.

The Fund is a project of the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in New York City. Award recipients were selected from a nationwide pool of applicants.

"Fiction" tells the story of Linda and Michael, married writers who thrive on their honest relationship. When they decide to share their diaries, the boundaries between past and present, fact and fiction, trust and betrayal begin to break down.

During the 1998 Gershwin centenary year his performances ranged from recitals for church concert series in various parts of the nation to soloist with the Singapore Symphony Orchestra. The Hartford Courant wrote "George Gershwin would have joined the audience in the standing ovation."

The 2002-2003 Nassau at Six continues on Sunday, November 17 with soprano Amanda Page Johnson. A graduate of Princeton High School and St. Olaf College, Ms. Johnson works at St. James' Church in New York City where she directs close to 60 children in four choirs.

Concert Series With Robert Taub Begins October 25

On Friday, October 25, Musica Viva, the Princeton area's newest concert series, begins its first season with a solo recital by Pianist Robert Taub.

The performance at Kirby Arts Center on the campus of The Lawrenceville School will begin with an informal pre-concert talk at 7:15 in which Mr. Taub will discuss interpretive and pianistic insights on the evening's repertoire. A post-concert discussion will provide members of the audience opportunities to converse with Mr. Taub about musical issues. The 8 p.m. performance includes works by Beethoven, Bartok, Liszt, and Schumann.

This is the first of three concerts offered this season by Musica Viva. The second, on Friday January 24, features two pianos and percussion, and the third, on Friday, May 2, highlights the Vanbrugh String Quartet from Europe.

Directing the concert series is part of Robert Taub's newly-created position as director of Performing Arts in Music at The Lawrenceville School. "I enjoyed so very much all the concerts I played in years past at the Institute that when offered the opportunity of developing a series at the beautiful Kirby Arts Center, I was very enthusiastic," he said.

He will perform on a new Steinway concert grand piano that the school has just acquired. "It is a very special instrument with a wonderful sonic palette, capable of overwhelming power as well as the most intimate singing tone," said Mr. Taub.

Robert Taub

Mr. Taub was the first musician to be artist-in-residence at the Institute for Advanced Study, where he was from 1994 to 2001. He developed several concert series there, and performed the complete cycle of Beethoven piano sonatas. The concerts began with a talk geared to the Institute community. Now, however, Mr. Taub is inviting the entire concert audience to hear these talks.

Asian Tour

Robert Taub completed a marathon 17-concert tour of Asia in August, and earlier this month performed a solo program as a highlight of the Kingston Arts Festival in London. "Taub plays with wholly extraordinary musical virtuosity" wrote the Times (London).

Later this season, Mr. Taub performs with the Boston Symphony Orchestra under the direction of James Levine.

Following the completion of his performance of the complete cycle of Beethoven Piano Sonatas in New York, he has begun the Beethoven cycle in London at Hampton Court Palace. His book, Playing the Beethoven Piano Sonatas, was recently released by Amadeus Press.

Mr. Taub graduated from Princeton University and received his masters and doctoral degrees from Juilliard in New York City.

A limited number of tickets for the Musica Viva performance on Friday October 25 are still available. Adult tickets are $10, subscriptions for all three events are $25. Students are free. For information, visit www.MusicaViva.info or call 895-2044.

Early Music Will Be Played By Ensemble

Le Triomphe de l'amour, New Jersey's chamber ensemble performing music of the Baroque on period instruments and now in its 12th season, will present the first concert of its 2002-2003 season on Saturday, October 19 at 8 p.m. at the Unitarian Church, Route 206 and Cherry Hill Road.

The ensemble will be joined by virtuoso Brazilian flutist Laura Ronai in a program of German masterworks by J.S. Bach and G.P. Telemann: the Partita in A minor for solo flute, the Sonata for viola da gamba and harpsichord in G major, and the Toccata in E minor for solo harpsichord of Bach, as well as trios and quartets by Telemann.

Future concerts in the series will be January 18, with violinist Daniel Elyar, March 8, with soprano Laura Heimes, and April 12.

Laura Ronai began her flute studies in Brazil, where she graduated from Uni-RIO (University of Rio de Janeiro). In 1978 she received a scholarship from the Helena Rubinstein Foundation to study at the State University of New York (Purchase Conservatory of Music).

In 1982 Ms. Ronai began her Master's course at the City University of New York (Hunter College), where she specialized in baroque flute.

Since her return to her homeland in 1984, Ms. Ronai has been active in teaching and making her instrument better known, through concerts, courses and lectures across the country.

She has been regularly invited to teach and play at the main early music courses in Brazil. Ms. Ronai has played successful recitals in Europe where, in 1991, she was invited to teach a series of master classes at the Madrid Royal Superior Conservatory.

In her performances, Ms. Ronai plays two instruments made by Roderick Cameron (USA): a copy of a Stanesby Jr. (c.1730) flute in ivory and gold, and another of a Rottenburgh (c.1750), in ebony and ivory.

The concert will be at 8 p.m. Tickets are $15, $10 for senior citizens, and $5 for students. For information, call 730-8796.

MUSIC REVIEW

University Orchestra Opens 2002-2003 Season With Barber, Bernstein, Mozart, and Wagner

The first notes heard from the Princeton University Orchestra this year were jarring — the opening chords of Samuel Barber's Overture to The School for Scandal are dissonant enough to set an audience on edge. But conductor Michael Pratt's Orchestra started the new season off with a lean and polished sound from a very large ensemble.

American Composers Featured

Mr. Pratt programmed Friday night's concert in Richardson Auditorium (it was repeated on Saturday night) to show the full range of the Orchestra: chamber sized for a Mozart violin concerto and full and lush for a Wagnerian Prelude. This concert featured a first half dedicated to American composers Samuel Barber and Leonard Bernstein. Barber's Overture to The School for Scandal brought out a lean sound from the strings, and precise playing from the brass. Not always as jarring as the opening few bars, this one-movement work musically paints an American landscape with a lushness punctuated by accurate winds, especially from clarinetist Anna Thoman and Oboist Andrew Braid.

Leonard Bernstein's Suite from Fancy Free included five of seven ballet dances composed by Bernstein for choreographer Jerome Robbins in 1943. The opening Enter Three Sailors reaffirmed Princeton University's jazz tradition from the Orchestra's brass section. This work emphasizes the lower strings and brass, with the interrupting instruments often in pairs. Most notable in this performance were trumpeter Beth Brittle, pianist Gabrielle Leong, and the entire percussion section (James Jeanne, Nick Stroustrup, and Lydia Holt). The clarinet and bassoon pairs played especially cleanly in the saucy and jazzy rhythms throughout. Although the suite seemed a bit unfinished without two of the movements, the Orchestra presented a solid performance overall.

Mr. Pratt scaled down the Orchestra in the second half to present Mozart's Concerto in A Major for Violin, K. 219, also known as the "Turkish" concerto for its gypsy flavor in its closing movement. This performance featured violinist James Shin, class of 2005, as soloist. Mozart's orchestration is small and concise, and Mr. Pratt maintained a good chamber approach to the dynamic shifts in the work. The Orchestra and Mr. Shin took a while to settle in with equal intonation, and the work was plagued throughout with mistakes from the horn section. However, by the second theme of the first movement, orchestra and soloist were working well together. Mr. Shin does not have an overpowering sound to his playing, and his style seemed to work more effectively in the faster sections of the concerto. His cadenza to the first movement was rather dramatic for the time period in which the piece was written, and the Orchestra was able to close the movement with a clean sound.

"Adagio" Played Delicately

The second movement "Adagio" was played delicately, and Mr. Shin's cadenza to this movement included many well-tuned thirds in the double stops. Mr. Shin continued to shine in the third movement "Rondeau" with a well-played opening melody to introduce the movement. Mr. Pratt had trained his ensemble well to shift character for the "Minuetto," and Orchestra and soloist concluded the concerto solidly.

The Orchestra returned to its expanded size for Wagner's Prelude to Die Meistersinger von Nurnberg, another work with heavy emphasis on brass. Although the opening brass sections were not as clean as they could have been, by the second entry of the main theme, the instruments were much more in line. Clarinet, bassoon and oboe sections were effective in adding lightness to the overall sound.

This program was a major undertaking, considering school has been in session for just over a month. The works were well chosen, even if some of the players had a hard time shifting from massive to chamber size. By presenting a student soloist so early in the year, Mr. Pratt served notice of the depth of talent at the University to be seen in the season. The rest of the season not only features other student soloists, but also a tour to Vienna, Prague and Brno, which will no doubt further challenge the Orchestra.

Bob Norman

Folksinger Bob Norman Offers Two Free Concerts

Bob Norman, a nationally known folksinger who makes his home in Lawrenceville, will make two free concert appearances here this month.

On Saturday, October 19, the veteran songwriter, guitarist and harmonica player will be one of several musicians representing the Princeton Folk Music Society at Wild Oats Market's "Celebrate Organic Day." He will perform from noon to 4 p.m.

On Friday, October 25, he will perform at Alphabooks in Pennington at 7 p.m., with special guest Sam Norman-Haignere.

Mr. Norman's career in folk music has spanned 30 years. From 1970 to 1977 he was editor of Sing Out!, the nation's leading folk music magazine, and served on its board until 1990. Since 1980 he has performed in clubs, coffeehouses, and festivals from Boston to San Diego, sharing stages with such folk legends as Pete Seeger, Tom Paxton, Richie Havens, Jack Elliott, and Dave Van Ronk. His songs have been performed by a dozen other artists, Seeger among them.

"Like all good songwriters," wrote The New Yorker, "Norman can distinguish the romantic from the sentimental. His bittersweet accounts of urban life are blissfully free of sappiness."

Mr. Norman's third CD of original songs, Love, Lust & Lilacs, and the recent CD rerelease of his first album, Romantic Nights on the Upper West Side, will be available at Alphabooks.

The Princeton Folk Music Society has cultivated and presented folk music in the Princeton area for 37 years. Memberships will be available at "Celebrate Organic Day."

Wild Oats Market is at 255 Nassau Street. The October 19 event there will also include juggling, face painting, pumpkin painting, and food tasting. Alphabooks is in the Pennington Shopping Center on Highway 31 South in Pennington.

"Rumpelstiltskin" To Be Performed

Grimm's fairy tale Rumpelstiltskin, a classic for children 2½ to 7, will be presented October 25 and 26 by the Off-Broadstreet Theatre in Hopewell. The production will be offered as part of the theatre's Children's Classic Series.

The Series offers youngsters an opportunity to experience live theatre in a non-threatening atmosphere. The improvisational children's troupe presents the story giving audience members cue phrases to listen for. Upon hearing these cues the children are encouraged to make appropriate responses. This interaction helps bring the fairy-tale characters to life and please the audience's interest.

Off-Broadstreet has offered early theatre exposure for young audiences for more than 18 years. Led by OBT Artistic Director Robert Thick, the actors include adult performers who have been featured in the theatre's main stage productions.

"We are delighted to find that we now have audience members attending our productions who remember coming to the theatre as children years ago," said Mr. Thick. "Our goal of introducing young audiences to the world of theatre, hoping they'll enjoy it for a lifetime, seems to be working."

Rumpelstiltskin performances are Friday, October 25, at 10 a.m., and Saturday, October 26, at 10:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. Admission is $4, with group rates available. For reservations or information, call 466-2766. The theatre is at 5 South Greenwood Avenue, Hopewell.

"Sleepy Hollow" At Kelsey Theatre

Mercer County Community College's Kelsey Theatre will present The Legend of Sleepy Hollow on Saturday, October 19, at 2 and 4 p.m.

The adaptation of Washington Irving's tale has been created with children in mind. More funny than scary, the show includes all the familiar characters, including the villainous Headless Horseman. Audience participation is encouraged.

The production is from Theatre IV, an award-winning, professional theatre company for young audiences headquartered in Richmond, Va., and Cincinnati, Ohio. Since 1975 the company has toured from Texas to Maine, while also presenting productions at its theater in Richmond. Last year, Theatre IV performed before nearly two million children, teens, parents and teachers in 33 states.

Kelsey Theatre is located on the college's West Windsor Campus at 1200 Old Trenton Road. Tickets are $8. Free parking is available next to the theatre.

Tickets may be purchased by calling 584-9444 or visiting www.kelseytheatre.org.

A complete listing of adult and children's events for the 2002-2003 theatre season may be obtained by calling the box office or visiting the Kelsey website.

Kelsey Theatre Presents "Sorcerer's Apprentice"

A little knowledge can get you in big trouble. That's the lesson learned by the hapless magician's assistant in The Sorcerer's Apprentice, presented by the Kelsey Players at Mercer County Community College's Kelsey Theatre on November 1 and 2.

Memorably played by Mickey Mouse in Fantasia, the apprentice decides to use his limited knowledge of magic to avoid doing his chores. Invoking the magic words, he awakens the broom, which starts filling pots and pans with water. But the situation quickly spirals out of control when he cannot remember the words to make the broom stop. The apprentice learns a hard lesson the whole family will enjoy.

Marty Berrien of Lawrenceville will appear as the sorcerer, Ben Schindel of Lawrenceville as the apprentice, Heather Wiese of Titusville as the cat, and Jesse Girard of Lawrenceville, Liz Barlett of Hamilton, and Shane Courtney of Hamilton as the "mag-ic."

The production will be directed by Diane Wargo.

Show times are Friday, November 1 at 7 p.m., and Saturday and Sunday, November 2 and 3, at 2 and 4 p.m.

Part Six Businesses

Because Princeton was a Jim Crow town, the colored population was not able to shop in certain stores, eat at restaurants, or attend many social establishments. This led to the creation of many colored businesses and establishments in the area from Nassau Street to Birch Avenue.

PRINCETON History

This is a house located on John Street where Dr. Henry Austin was born. He became a physician, but since he could not practice at the hospital in Princeton, he moved to Trenton. Today there is the Henry J. Austin Health Care Center in Trenton. Years later Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ball moved into this house where Mr. Ball had a small store on the right side of the house. He started the store about 1929. All the neighborhood children would go to his store to get ice cream cones for 5 cents, big dill pickles from the barrel, all kinds of penny candy, chips and soda.

This is the parking lot on Clay Street (behind the Clay Street Learning Center circa 2000). From the 1930's to early 1950's, this was the site of the ice plant that was owned by Andrew Teague and George Barclay. It was also referred to as Barclay's Ice and Wood Plant. The plant provided families with large blocks of ice for their iceboxes, and ice was delivered by truck to area restaurants. The plant was located in an area known as Gordon Park. This location was named after a colored resident, Addison Gordon, who owned property near Clay and Witherspoon streets.

This house, located on Witherspoon Street, belonged to Mrs. Vann, who had an ice cream parlor in her home. She started her business in the early 1900s and continued selling ice cream and candy until her death in 1940. Many small businesses were operated in private homes.

In the 1930s, this location on the corner of Shirley Court and Witherspoon streets, was the site of a tailor shop then a second-hand shop. In the late 1940's, it opened as Tadlock's Restaurant, owned by John Tadlock. Mr. Tadlock served delicious hamburgers and hot dogs. Many University students and nurses from the hospital joined the neighborhood patrons for southern-style dinners.

The Imperial Restaurant (above, far left), was owned by Mr. Burnett Griggs for 42 years until he retired at the age of 83. The community and Princeton University students frequented this restaurant for delicious meals and generous ice cream cones. During Princeton's "urban renewal," Mr. Griggs had to fight off the Borough to keep his property. He was offered a generous sum for this property, but he claimed he would not sell his property for a million dollars because he had saved every penny to purchase the land.

Doris started a beauty parlor and Fred opened a florist shop where he supplied flowers and plants for weddings, funerals, dances and many events in Princeton. After about 20 years, Fred closed the business and Doris expanded her beauty salon, which continues to serve residents throughout Mercer County, Philadelphia and New York.

Lillie's Beauty Salon. Lillian Taylor came to Princeton from Robersonville, N.C. She went to the Witherspoon School for Colored Children and graduated from Princeton High School in 1938. She received a beauty culture certificate from a beauty school in Newark, and her first employment as a hairdresser was at a beauty parlor on Hulfish Street. She opened her own business in 1948 on Witherspoon Street. In 1958 she continued her business on Quarry Street, where she still lives today. The house above was also previously the home of "Tobe" Robeson, Paul Robeson's cousin. "Tobe" owned a vendor wagon and sold hot dogs and sodas on Nassau Street in front of Nassau Hall.

Three buildings on Spring Street were owned by William Moore, a native of Hillsboro, N.C. Known as "Sport," he was a successful owner of a second-hand store. He also sold furniture and antiques. University students would sell him their clothes to finance their trips to New York. His daughter, Christine Moore Howell, owned a beauty parlor at this site from the 1920's to 1940's. In later years Rex Gorleigh, a black artist, had his studio in this building before he moved to Canal Road.

Pleasant Macon's Tavern, also known as Macon's Willow Inn and later known as Macon's Inn-Bar, operated from the 1930s to the 1980s on the corner of Route 1 and Raymond Road. Mr. Macon was the first African-American to own a business on Route 1 between Princeton and New Brunswick. Mr. Macon also owned a gas station that was adjacent to the Inn. Macon's Inn-Bar was demolished in the 1980's and a service station was later built on this site. In the 1930's Mr. Macon also owned the Macon Grocery and Meat Market located at 4½ Leigh Avenue and the Witherspoon Fish Market located at 40 Witherspoon Street.

Numbers 4-6 Spring Street were the locations of Christine Moore Howell's Beauty Salon and Cosmetic Laboratory. The daughter of entrepreneur, William Moore, she owned two unique and flourishing beauty businesses. For 28 years Christine's Beauty Salon catered to "the very high class, particular clientele." Adjoining her salon was a laboratory where she produced her hair and skin care products. She studied beauty culture in the United States and Europe. In 1935 Mrs. Howell, right, helped to create New Jersey's State Board of Beauty Culture and served as a State Commissioner of the Board of Beauty Culture Control. She was elected chairman of the Commission for three terms.

Soccer's 11-0 Start Giving Coach Deerin Dream Finale

Princeton University women's soccer co-captain Heather Deerin had plenty of reasons to look forward to her senior season.

After being named the Ivy League Player of the Year as a junior and helping the Tigers reach the second round of the NCAA tournament, Deerin figured that the veteran squad would be formidable this fall.

But after Princeton's dramatic 2-1 overtime win last Saturday against visiting Penn which improved the Tigers to 11-0 (4-0, Ivy), Deerin admitted that she had no idea how good things were going to be this season.

"Right now, this is one of the greatest feelings ever, we're just on a roll and every game we go into hoping it's not going to end," said the defender whose jersey was covered with mud from her efforts in subduing the Quakers.

"I have never been on a team that has been 11-0. I knew that this team was going to be one of the best teams I've played on in my four years here but this is beyond expectations."

The Tigers gave a glimpse of what has made them so special in beating the Quakers on a chilly, drizzly night when a lesser team might've given in. After taking a first half lead on a Krista Arissa goal, the Tigers surrendered a score to Katy Cross, the star forward of the Quakers who had entered the evening at 1-0-1 in Ivy play.

With an inspired Penn team pressing to snap the Tigers' winning streak and unblemished Ivy mark, Princeton responded by clamping down on Cross and producing several chances of their own.

Once the game went into overtime, the Tigers increased the heat and scored the decisive goal as Esmeralda Negron put in a rebound at 7:53 of the first overtime for her team-leading seventh goal and fourth game-winner of the season.

Deerin acknowledged that Penn had the Tigers on the ropes. "We weren't quite as tough as we needed to be earlier in the game," said the Livingston, native. "I thought we were getting outworked a bit and we came back with a good second half and overtime. We have a great team chemistry and depth. We have three or four people at every spot so we can overwork everyone."

Beaming head coach Julie Shackford was ecstatic with the team's effort and its blazing start.

"We always have a good game with Penn, it's a great rivalry," said Shackford. "I think the defense played well, that's our bread and butter. This was huge, I'm speechless. Who could've been expecting 11-0? Not in a sport like soccer where with one bad bounce you can be on the losing end."

The team's start has led Shackford to upwardly adjust her expectations. "You get really greedy," she said with a laugh as she looked ahead to a game at Villanova on October 16 and a home match with Brown on October 19. "I'm greedy now. I just want us to play well and get better and hopefully these results will keep coming."

The Tigers, who came into the game ranked 18th in the nation, are now the only undefeated and untied team in Division I women's soccer.

Deerin, meanwhile, is taking a slightly longer term perspective as she leads the team through her senior season.

"It's meant a lot to be recognized as a leader of a team that's working so well together," said Deerin, who acknowledged that the squad is now looking to accomplish a 17-0 regular season. "I couldn't have asked for anything more in my senior year. We always say we want to leave a mark on the program and with a season like this I couldn't think of a better way to end it." —Bill Alden

AMERICAN BEAUTY: Princeton University midfielder Marty Shaw surges past the American University defense last Wednesday as the Tigers beat the visiting Eagles 3-2 on a last-second goal by Darren Spicer. The Tigers fell 3-1 at Hartwick last Saturday to drop to 2-6-2 on the season. Princeton will look to improve its 0-2 Ivy League record in a crucial home match against Brown on October 18.

Tiger Tennis Denied ECAC Title by Yale

The Princeton University women's tennis team fell to Yale 5-2 in the tournament final match last Monday in the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference (ECAC) championships at Flushing Meadows, New York.

Winners for the Tigers against Yale included Kavitha Krishnamurthy at first singles and Jessica Siebel at number six singles. Krishnamurthy also teamed with Neha Uberoi to win at number one doubles but Princeton filed to gain the doubles point as Yale won at number two and three doubles.

Over the weekend, Princeton defeated James Madison 4-0 and Boston College 4-3 in the opening rounds before topping Brown 4-0 to reach the championship match. The Tigers will be in Cambridge, Mass. on October 26-28 for the Intercollegiate Tennis Association (ITA) Regional Championships.

IVY LEAGUE WRAP

Princeton hosts Brown in its first Ivy League home contest of the season, looking to match Harvard's 2-0 Ivy mark.

Brown at Princeton: The Tigers (3-1, 1-0 Ivy), having won three straight and five of last six contests, are gaining confidence by leaps and bounds but will be wary of winless Brown (0-4, 0-1), which has dropped some squeakers this year including last week's 24-17 setback to Fordham.

Pennsylvania at Columbia: The Quakers (3-1, 1-0), who dropped from the unbeaten ranks after losing 17-3 to 1-AA power Villanova last Thursday, will be looking to add to the misery of Columbia (1-3, 0-1), which blew a 21-point lead last Saturday in 28-21 loss to 3-2 Lafayette.

Holy Cross at Dartmouth: The Big Green (1-3, 0-1), which pulled the Ivy shocker of the season so far as they got into the win column last week by beating previously unbeaten Yale 20-17, may have trouble building on that win against scrappy Holy Cross (3-3).

Northeastern at Harvard: The Crimson (3-1, 2-0) got back on the winning track in a big way as they piled up 553 yards in total offense in routing hapless Cornell 52-23 but will be tested in a battle of Boston against hot Northeastern which is 5-1 for the first time since 1967.

Yale at Lehigh: Two angry teams will be clashing in Bethlehem as the Bulldogs (3-1, 1-1), who fell out of Ivy first place tie with stunning defeat to Dartmouth, face proud Mountain Hawks (4-2) which suffered one of their most disappointing losses in years as they fell 23-19 to Towson (4-2) last Saturday to snap a 16-game winning streak in Patriot League contests.

Colgate at Cornell: The Big Red (1-3, 0-2), who have given up 102 points in their two Ivy defeats, will be facing a fired-up 3-3 Raiders, bound to be smarting after losing to Princeton on that fourth quarter Splithoff-Szymanski scoring strike.

The Tigers started the weekend by winning 3-1 at Cornell on Friday as Buffum put in another strong effort with 18 kills. # Dewey Helps PDS Soccer Topple Pennington Jinx

Princeton Day School senior midfielder Will Dewey hit the field for last Thursday's game against the visiting Pennington School soccer team looking to exorcise some demons.

For Dewey and his classmates on the squad, the clashes with the Red Raiders have stuck in their craw as they have been unable to beat Pennington, dropping several close games including last year's prep state tournament game.

Playing like a man possessed from the opening whistle, Dewey was a force on both defense and offense as the Panthers overcame a steady rain and a physical Pennington team to emerge with a sweet 2-0 win.

"Before the game we had a talk and we realized that this was important, particularly to the seniors," said a drenched Dewey after the ill-tempered match that featured several hard tackles and some harsh exchanges between the teams. "We've had some heartbreak losses to Pennington and it was good to finally get one against them. I think it was a great effort, everybody pushed through the whole 80 minutes. We've been having problems with that but everybody came for this game."

The Panthers, who hadn't beaten Pennington since 1998, got goals from Mike Crowley and Sean Dickson in what was their second straight win after a 2-7 start.

In Dewey's view, it was the Panthers' defensive performance that carried the day. "We had a real good defensive effort today," added Dewey, who has scored three goals this season. "We've been jumbled the past few games but this time we really played strong."

PDS head coach Malcolm Murphy, a native of Manchester, England, certainly seemed in his element as he guided his "lads" through the rain.

"I'm used to this, I could stand out here all day," laughed Murphy, who turned serious as he assessed his team's performance. "I let the seniors get together with the other players before the game, we knew it was going to be a hard game. I'm well pleased for the team, they've worked hard all year, they played exceptionally well today."

Murphy, who is in his first year guiding the Panthers, was particularly pleased with Dewey's efforts.

"Will was our man of the match by far," said Murphy, whose goalkeeper Tom Feuerstein also starred as he made several sparkling saves. "He played himself out of his skin."

Overall, however, it was the effort more than the result that heartened Murphy as he works to instill his approach in his debut season at PDS.

"We're still trying to find our feet, I'm trying to build a program that brings in excellence in defending and offense," said Murphy, whose squad's upcoming action includes home games against Rutgers Prep on October 15 and Timothy Christian Academy on October 18.

"I couldn't really tell you our record. The result isn't important. It's the way they put out to today, it's the character they showed and that's for them to build on."

Dewey, for one, is buying into the program.

"We started over this season and I think we're all on the same page now," maintained Dewey. "We're playing more of a possession game, it's more English than American. We all know we're going now. I think that's beneficial to the team and I think we're starting to show pretty well." Just ask the Pennington soccer team.

STURHAHN, DICKENSON & BERNARD

Running backs take a pounding in the NFL. In fact, only two running backs in league history have started more than 100 consecutive games. Number two on the list is Ricky Watters with 114 straight starts. Can you guess who is number one? It's no surprise that the answer is Walter Payton, but what's astonishing is that Payton's record for consecutive starts by a running back is 170 games--the equivalent of more than 10 full seasons, and almost 70% more than Watters.

Unlike the NBA, the NHL, or even the NFL, no major league team has ever entered the post season with a .500 record or worse. In 1994, the Texas Rangers were leading the American League West with a record of 52-62, but a strike wiped out the rest of the season and all of the playoffs.

So which big league team headed into the post season with the worst record? It was the 1973 New York Mets, who won the National League East with a mark of 82-79.

These days, professional athletes around the world are fined frequently for all manner of indiscretions and rules violations. But perhaps no fine has ever been more bizarre than the one imposed by the English Football Association's Premier League upon Birmingham city midfielder Robbie Savage during the 2002 soccer season. After a full hearing, Savage was fined the equivalent of $15,350 plus costs for — get this — using the referee's toilet!

ENJOYING THE SWITCH: Princeton Day School receiver Lon Johnson hones his pass catching skills last week at practice. Johnson, a junior who switched to football from soccer after his freshman year, has made 19 catches for 417 yards and four touchdowns in the Panthers' first five games.

PDS' Johnson Finding Excitement in Football

As Lon Johnson finished soccer season two falls ago in his freshman year at Princeton Day School, he was starting to tire of the sport.

Looking for a change and aided by the considerable push of family members, namely his father, Martin, who played football at Princeton University in the late 1970s and elder brother Jeremy, a star running back at PDS prior to his graduation last spring, Johnson made the switch to the gridiron.

Now, halfway through his junior season, it is clear that Johnson has found the excitement in football that was missing in soccer, having emerged as the Panthers' go-to receiver with 19 receptions for 417 yards and four touchdowns in the team's first five games.

"Even after playing soccer for six years, I still felt like I was doing the same thing," said Johnson, who has a fifth touchdown this season on a kick return.

"I think it's more fun to catch a pass and go down the sidelines than it ever was to score a goal. There's an adrenaline in football, it's more physical and it's more about being a better athlete."

And then there is the family tie, as Johnson noted that his brother Jeremy switched to football from soccer after his sophomore year. "Jeremy had a great time with football so I thought I'd try it a little earlier," added Johnson. "My dad was saying 'just try it out, just see what you think.'"

At times this fall, Johnson may have wondered what he got himself into as the Panthers have struggled, getting out of the gate with a 1-4 start and suffering through some one-sided defeats. Johnson's big play ability, though, has been a constant as he has shown an ability for breaking the big plays, with his touchdowns usually coming on plays longer than 50 yards.

His 80-yard touchdown reception in the first quarter against Sussex County Tech on October 5 helped spur the Panthers to their only win on the season so far as they went on to a 27-6 triumph.

No Regrets

Despite the team's struggles, Johnson has no regrets about his decision to turn to football.

"I'm glad I made the switch, it has made a big difference in my life," said Johnson. "Sometimes it's been frustrating, with the one-sided losses it's hard to build confidence. We needed a win like that, it's going to be interesting to see how we'll pull through, hopefully we'll be able to carry the momentum."

One person who is particularly glad that Johnson took his talents to football is PDS head coach Bill Martin.

"Lon is a big play guy, he's an exceptional athlete," said Martin, whose squad fell 19-14 to Tower Hill last Friday and hosts St. Joseph's Palisades on October 19. "He's very fleet afoot, he's designed for him."

Martin said that Johnson has proved to be a quick learner. "There was a transition for Lon in terms of understanding the concepts and rules of the game, the do's and don'ts of football," said Martin.

"But since his athleticism was already a variable in the formula, all we had to do was to find the other variables to plug in. His ability to run a defined pass route has improved 150 percent this year and that's what gives him the chance to have 60-70 yard touchdowns."

Johnson, for his part, isn't quite sure how he's developed his knack for the big play.

"I just try and get the most yardage out of any situation," explained Johnson. "Because of the position I play, a lot of times it's one guy between me and the goal line. Will King [the PDS quarterback] has done a pretty good job of getting me the ball."

As for his future in his adopted game, Johnson isn't getting carried away. "At some point, I'd like to get into the backfield more," said Johnson. "It's too early to think about the next level. I can always hope, but obviously it will take a lot of hard work."

One thing appears sure, however, it doesn't look like Johnson is going to get tired of football any time soon.

Laura Brienza finished first and Emily Driscoll took second as the Stuart Country Day cross country team won the Patriot Conference meet at Gill-St. Bernard's last Wednesday.

The Tartans, who took six of the top 12 paces in winning the meet, also got strong performances from Catherine Curry, who took seventh, Chloe Pollack-Robbins in eighth, Caroline Cancelosi in 11th and Kate Zulner, the 12th place finisher.

Stuart, which has now won the Patriot meet four straight seasons, will next compete on October 16 at Blair Academy before running in the Mercer County Championship on October 22 at Veterans Park in Hamilton.

PHS Football's 1st Win Product of Work Ethic

As Princeton High football head coach Steve Everette watched his Little Tigers celebrate their 16-13 win over visiting Hightstown last Saturday, one word came to his mind: "wheh."

Everette's reaction made perfect sense as the triumph was the Little Tigers' first on-the-field win in 17 games since it beat West Windsor-Plainsboro North in 2000. The Little Tigers' 2001 record shows a win over Ewing but that was earned off-the-field due to a forfeit.

There was no such technicality Saturday as the Little Tigers fought back from a 13-6 halftime deficit and took the lead in the third quarter on a seven-yard touchdown run by David Mostoller. Princeton's staunch defense then held the fort for the rest of the game, enduring several anxious moments before securing the win and touching off an exuberant display in the stands and on the field.

"The kids, the other coaches and I have been working so hard," said Everette, as he reflected on the win which also marked the program's first Homecoming triumph in 10 years. "It was a huge monkey off of our backs. It shows the kids that if you put in the time and work hard, good things will happen."

Coming into Saturday, Everette wasn't sure that the breakthrough was going to come against Hightstown as he feared the persistent rain in the days before the game would favor the Rams.

"I didn't want to see rain this week, I thought we were quicker than Hightstown," explained Everette, whose team improved to 1-4 with the victory. "I thought that we could use that to our advantage if it was dry but the field held up."

The slippery turf certainly didn't keep the Little Tigers defense from coming up with a series of clutch plays. "Our defense has played well all year," said Everette, who has been getting strong play in the trenches from seniors Michael Britt and Emre Guzelsu, among others. "Against Hightstown we had two goal line stands, we put pressure on their quarterback all day and we had two interceptions."

The Little Tigers held the Rams to 51 yards rushing and also recovered three fumbles. On the offensive side of the ball, Princeton ran for 147 yards as Nick Procaccino gained 44 yards and Geoff Crisman chipped in 41 more.

Princeton's first touchdown came on a 13-yard pass play in the first quarter from Jarrod Simpson to B.J. Lawrence. The Little Tigers' other points came on a 28-yard field goal by Britt in the third quarter minutes before Mostoller's decisive score.

While the win left the team giddy, Everette doesn't think it will change the team's focus.

"By winning the game, the kids may be more active in following their assignments since they see that can result in a win," said Everette, whose squad travels to 3-1 Hamilton on October 19. "But our kids have worked really hard, we have a large, dedicated core of kids and this won't change their effort."

—Bill Alden

Lawrenceville Runners Sweep George Meet

The Lawrenceville School cross country teams dominated last Saturday's George Invitational in Newtown, Pa. as both the boys' and girls' teams won their respective competitions.

On the boys' side, Andrew Alvarez took second while Tamiz Ahmed came in third to pace the win. As for the girls, Becky Mackenzie finished first, Alison Hillas took fifth and Natalia Obolensky came in 11th to lead the way for the Big Red.

Both teams will face Blair Academy on October 19.

Playwright, Director Emily Mann Begins 13th Season as McCarter's Artistic Director

A live theatrical performance is unique. Actors and audience are in the moment together, and the experience can linger long after the curtain has gone down. A stunning performance, an electrifying play, a matchless moment on stage — all of us have responded at some time to one of these, and the memory remains.

It has been the particular talent of Emily Mann to create enduring theatre, both as a playwright and director. In her role as artistic director of The McCarter Theatre Center for the Performing Arts for the past 12 years, she has helped raise McCarter's profile by staging plays of rich variety and contrast, mixing classic repertory with new works, and engaging audiences on many levels.

"I felt McCarter should be extremely successful; it should be at the top," says Ms. Mann. "As a writer and director, I especially wanted the centerpiece of my mission to be new plays, new authors. Also, a university and a professional theater should have a fit, and that was an important consideration."

There hardly seems a time when the theater was not central to Ms. Mann's life, but actually, it wasn't until she was 14 that the theatrical magic really took hold.

"When I was a freshman in high school, I had a massive crush on a boy, and he was an actor," recalls Ms. Mann, with a smile. "I heard if you worked on the play, you could go to the cast party. I remember the play was Under Milk Wood by Dylan Thomas. So I worked on props and swept the stage. The crush didn't last, but the love affair with the theatre did!"

She had been engaged in creative pursuits from the time she was a very young girl, she reports. "I made up stories from the moment I could hold a pencil. I was always writing little stories. And I was a book person; I was always reading. I really thought I would be a novelist or a teacher. I was the daughter of teachers."

Born in Boston to Arthur and Sylvia Mann, Emily and her sister Carol grew up in Northampton, Mass., where her father taught American history at Smith College.

Later, he moved to the University of Chicago for another teaching position, and Emily attended high school in Chicago.

Different Viewpoints

During these years, she played the piano and the flute, as well as continuing her writing and also acting in school plays.

"In my junior year in high school, the drama teacher said, 'You think like a director.' I was a literary person," says Ms. Mann.

"I really enjoyed analyzing the text from many different viewpoints, and I also liked the visual end. As soon as I directed my first play, I was hooked for life! I was 17."

As an undergraduate at Harvard, Ms. Mann majored in English and minored in French. A theater major was then unavailable, but she took courses in playwriting and wrote plays continuously.

Intent on a career in the theater, she recalls that "My parents were my greatest support always. My mother and father are my heroes. But I think my Dad secretly hoped I wouldn't go into the theater. I remember he said to me 'If you choose the theater, you'd better be damn good at it!'"

After graduating in 1974, Ms. Mann was very interested in directing, but she was not given encouragement. "A professor told me, there's no place for women directors in the theater. Have you thought of children's theater? Well, I wasn't interested in children's theater."

She decided instead to attend a graduate school program at the University of Minnesota, where she studied for one year and then apprenticed at The Guthrie Theatre in Minneapolis the next year. She had the opportunity to direct, and ultimately received a Master of Fine Arts.

Resident Director

Following her apprenticeship, she became resident director at The Guthrie Theatre in 1976, where she remained for two years.

"When I directed my first play, The Glass Menagerie at The Guthrie, I was the first woman to direct there," she recalls. "The Guthrie was very exciting. It was a thrill for me to be directing professionally."

Ms. Mann continued her directing career at The Brooklyn Academy of Music's Theatre Company in Brooklyn, N.Y. in 1980 and '81, followed by nine years of free-lancing as a writer and director in New York City.

Drawn to serious subjects both in writing and directing, Ms. Mann has described her work as "theater of testimony."

"I was the daughter of an historian," she explains. My father's best friend was Dr. John Hope Franklin. The two families were very close, and he was my intellectual mentor.

Face-to-Face

"Also, I was always interested in ideas and people and in documenting them. Other people would come to me with their stories, and I came face-to-face with them. On some level, they changed my life. These are plays shaped from life. It first comes to me that

"THE PLAY'S THE THING": "Each play asks you to do something else. The most important thing is that you translate it into real terms as a living whole that is utterly seamless, and that the audience doesn't see the director's hand in it." Emily Mann, artistic director of McCarter Theatre, looks forward to a stimulating new theatrical season in Princeton.

people need to tell their story."

This is literally true, she adds. "I'd be sitting on a plane or train, trying to read a book, and someone would come and tell me their story."

Her own plays have dealt with subjects such as the Holocaust, Vietnam, and racism, focusing on questions of justice. Her first play, Annulla Allen: Autobiography of A Survivor (1974) is based on interviews she had with a woman who had escaped from a concentration camp during World War II.

Other plays include Still Life, drawn from the testimonies of a Vietnam veteran and the two women in his life, which won six Obie Awards (including Distinguished Playwriting and Distinguished Director); Execution of Justice, a response to the 1978 murders of San Francisco Mayor George Moscone and City Supervisor Harvey Milk; Betsey Brown:

A Rhythm and Blues Musical, with Ntozake Shange and Baikida Carroll; Greensboro — A Requiem, based on the events surrounding a 1979 Ku Klux Klan assault in Greensboro, N.C.; and Hoving Our Say: The Delaney Sisters' First 100 Years, which Ms. Mann adapted from Sarah L. Delaney and Elizabeth A. Delaney's memoir, Having Our Say.

Other adaptations and translations include Nights and Days (Les nuits et les jours) by Pierre Laville, August Strindberg's Miss Julie, The House of Bernarda Alba by Federico Garcia Lorca, and Isaac Bashevis Singer's Meshugah.

Many Considerations

In 1990, Ms. Mann was offered the position of artistic director at McCarter Theatre, and it was a decision she considered very carefully.

"I had never seen a play at McCarter until I interviewed for the job," she recalls. "I thought how could I be a mother, writer, director, and administrator? I was a single mother. My husband and I were separated, and there were many considerations."

But the chance to bring new energy and vitality to an important theater and raise the level of audience awareness by presenting socially relevant subjects was an opportunity not to be missed.

She remembers at the time a colleague advising her that "I think it's time that you've made a body of work for yourself — and you have a producer's brain!"

A Great Theater

"Then I went to Peter Hall, who was director of the National Theatre of England. If I were to take it, I asked him, what was needed to make a great theater? He said first, you need a great team, and second, everything you put on must be an event."

"Finally," she continues, "my father said, 'the thing you have to ask is what do you want it to be? One of the great theaters in America? Then you have to ask, one, is it possible, and two, is it worth doing?'"

Ms. Mann was urged to come to Princeton by her friend, Nancy Malkiel, now Dean of the College at Princeton University. "Nancy was my father's most gifted student in American history at Smith," says Ms. Mann, whose friendship with Ms. Malkiel goes back many years.

"I knew Emily when she was a little girl," remembers Ms. Malkiel, "and I occasionally baby-sat for her. My husband and I certainly tried to communicate the many reasons we thought she would thrive in Princeton."

Emily Mann

"I think her presence has made an extraordinary difference to McCarter. The quality of the theater we have the privilege of seeing in Princeton is so rich and challenging now.

Extraordinary Partner

"Emily has also been an extraordinary partner for the university. She has taught a number of courses herself and brought to Princeton theater artists, including actors and playwrights, who have interacted with the students."

Ms. Mann found that she had another long-time friend here when she arrived in Princeton. "Louise Grafton, who was property master of the Court Theatre in Chicago, gave me my first job as a prop person when I was 15, and then I discovered she was in Princeton."

"I'm a theater prop-maker," says Ms. Grafton, "and years ago, in the summer, I worked for the Court Theatre (actually held in one of the courtyards of the University of Chicago). Emily was one of my high school helpers. She was a smart, wonderful kid, who learned a lot. We'd work until late in the evening, and she was terrifically helpful. I had a lot of helpers, and they were all good, but Emily made the greatest impression on me."

"Then, later, I remembered seeing her name in the papers, and I thought 'Oh, my gosh, she's making a career for herself in the theater!' When I heard she was coming to Princeton, I wrote a note and said, 'do you remember me?'"

Socially Relevant

"Now, we have a warm and wonderful friendship. Her contribution to McCarter has been immense. She has turned McCarter into an arts center, a regional theater that is admired all over. She does socially relevant activist theater that no one else is doing any more. There's just so much going on at the theater. You don't want to miss it! McCarter has become an enormous success, and it's all due to Emily."

"I was always interested in ideas and people and in documenting them. Other people would come to me with their stories, and I came face-to-face with them. On some level, they changed my life."

Certainly, Ms. Mann was determined to make McCarter into a top-notch theater, and as she points out, "That means the top playwrights, top directors, top actors. In fact, in the beginning, I didn't realize all it would mean! It was a huge turnaround for the entire community. Everything was shaken up. New people came; others left. But by the second show (Three Sisters) of the second season, we were on our way."

Ms. Mann's imprint has been felt in a number of ways, and only four years after her arrival, McCarter received the 1994 Tony Award for Outstanding Regional Theatre.

Own Work

Also in 1994, she directed her own work, Having Our Say: The Delaney Sisters' First 100 Years in its world premiere, which went on to Broadway. Nominated for Tony, Outer Critics Circle, and Drama Desk Awards for Best Play and Best Direction, it received The Jefferson Award for Best Play and Direction and the Dramatist Guild's Hull Warriner Award for Best Play.

Ms. Mann also wrote the screenplay for Having Our Say's television adaptation, which won the Peabody Award.

During Ms. Mann's stewardship, McCarter has premiered a number of plays, including Dael Orlandersmith's Yellowman, Athol Fugard's

Sorrows and Rejoicings, Tempest and Uncle Vanya, Regina Taylor's Crowns (the current McCarter production), Eric Bogosian's Humpty Dumpty, Stephen Wadsworth's adaptations of plays in the five-play season. Making Shakespeare accessible to audiences is very important, she notes. "You read the play again and again. In the case of The Tempest, I've almost committed it to memory. Now, I'm looking for appropriate cuts and changes. We have a season full of new ideas and a whole new creative chapter coming up with the Berlind Theatre — another main stage, but an intimate theater, which will open in the spring."

Selected Readings

Ms. Mann's busy schedule also includes speaking engagements, and she will appear at Barnes & Noble in MarketFair October 24 for discussion and selected readings from Political Stages: Plays That Shaped A

Reflecting on her career, Ms. Mann comments that "Life in the theater has been very good to me. In many ways, the theater is my university. The great thing about the theater is the collaboration. You're never alone. You're always growing and learning and being stretched to another level."

Town of Experts

"Also, I find I do love the community part of being artistic director — all the different people I meet. Was it Einstein who said 'Princeton is a small town of experts'? When I lived in New York, just about all my friends were in the theater. In Princeton, it is more diverse. You meet such interesting people. At a dinner, you could meet Nobel Prize winners, economists, novelists, lawyers — people of many backgrounds. It's important to know a lot of people. It's a mirror of the audience. I love the mix of people in Princeton, and I have amazing friends."

Ms. Mann is indeed happy with her life in Princeton, which she shares with her husband, Gary Mailman, an attorney with Herrick, Feinstein, and her son Nicholas, now a freshman at Northwestern University.

Although she was diagnosed with multiple sclerosis several years ago, her enthusiasm for her work has remained undiminished.

"She's not a giver-upper," points out Louise Grafton. "Emily has a terrific amount of drive — tremendous energy and dedication."

"You have to be very focused," explains Ms. Mann, whose recent schedule included a 10-hour theater workshop, followed by a week-end of intensive rehearsals and further workshops.

"I have been able to handle everything because the MS has been contained. And certainly because of my wonderful husband and my son, and all my friends who have given me so much support, understanding, and love. I couldn't do it without them."

New Season

Also, she adds, "In Having Our Say, Sadie Delaney said 'The key is to love your wounds.' I was at the Delaney sisters' house, and Sadie had just had hip surgery. She showed me the scar, and it was small and smooth. She had rubbed it with Vitamin E every day, and dealt with it hands-on. I'm trying to do that in my own situation. I do yoga every day, and I just deal with it."

Now, she is looking forward to McCarter's new season. She says her favorite play is always the one she is working on, and she will direct two productions, The Century, a book which she co-edited.

A recipient of many awards and honors, Ms. Mann notes two that are especially meaningful. "The Dramatist Guild's Hull Warriner Award for Best Play for Having Our Say was very important to me. The executive council of the Dramatist Guild is made up of extraordinary playwrights, and to be given an award from one's peers is extraordinarily moving."

Last June, she received an honorary Doctor of Fine Arts from Princeton University. "I wish my father had been alive for this," she says quietly.

The notation for her doctorate reads: "As a playwright, she has borne witness to the centrality of stories sometimes thought marginal, providing us with unsettling yet eloquent documentaries of the way we live now. As a director, she has allowed us to hear the full range of comic and tragic voices in the works of Shakespeare and Ibsen, Chekhov and Williams."

"As the artistic director of Princeton's McCarter Theatre and a teacher in the university's Program in Theater and Dance, she has graced the stages and classrooms of our lives with her forceful testimonies to a theater that is both aesthetically pleasing and politically engaged, both beautiful and useful."

"I love Princeton," says Ms. Mann gratefully. "And I hope the theater is enriching the community. We have become a national theater, and we introduce work that is international. It is so very gratifying."

—Jean Stratton

EYECARE FACTS MONTGOMERY EYE CARE

"Dedicated to Quality and Service"

Presented by Dr. Mary E. Boname
Optometric Physician

MACULAR DEGENERATION

Macular degeneration, the disease that can lead to the loss of central vision, generally takes one of two forms. The dry form occurs when the tissue of the macula (the central portion of the retina) thins over time. It is less severe and develops more gradually than the wet form, producing symptoms of grayness, haziness, or a blind spot of the center of the visual field. In the wet form, blood vessels grow abnormally underneath the retina in much the same way that tree roots may lift a sidewalk. They may also leak and damage the retina, resulting in such visual distortions as straight lines that appear to be wavy and a central blind spot. While no treatments can reverse damage caused by macular degeneration, vision loss may be slowed.

Macular degeneration is most commonly a natural result of the aging process. With time, the retinal tissues break down and become thin. This deterioration causes a loss of function of the macula, which is responsible for central vision and color vision. Regular eye exams are the only means of detecting macular degeneration, as the symptoms of the disease often go unnoticed until they are well advanced. Call MONTGOMERY EYE CARE at 609-279-0005 to arrange an eye health exam. We are located at Montgomery Center at 1325 Rt. 206.

P.S. The wet form of macular degeneration can be treated with lasers if the diagnosis is made early, while the dry form cannot be treated surgically.

Quaker Cemetery

originally constructed on the site in the late 18th century.

A group of Quakers and Presbyterians — which included Quaker John Homer — played a large role in the history of the Princeton community by securing land in 1752 for the location of the College of New Jersey, which later became Princeton University.

During the Battle of Princeton, which took place on January 3, 1777 and which was a decisive battle for General George Washington, the Quaker Meeting House was used to shelter wounded soldiers from both the colonial and British forces. In addition, soldiers of both sides who died in battle during the Revolutionary War were buried in the cemetery's grounds.

One of the individuals located within the cemetery's grounds is Richard Stockton Sr., a signer of the Declaration of Independence. Exactly where Mr. Stockton is buried within the grounds, however, is not known due to the lack of a marker and the Quaker practice during that time of prohibiting markers with names.

According to the information prepared by Mr. Brown, his son, Richard Stockton Jr., a statesman who served his native New Jersey in the Senate from 1796 to 1799 and then in the House of Representatives from 1813 to 1815, is buried in the Princeton Cemetery.

The history of the Quaker community in Princeton, however, is not solely an account of historical figures and significant events.

In 1878, the Princeton Friends Meeting was closed down due to disinterest. Ms. Borden indicated that, by that time, many Quaker families had become Presbyterians.

Beginning in May 1914, the meeting house was used sporadically for meetings during warm weather. During that time, the Chesterfield Meeting of Crosswicks was entrusted with the maintenance of the building and the burial grounds.

By 1941, a Quaker community began meeting consistently again in Princeton. Initially, the meetings were held in Murray-Dodge Hall on the campus of Princeton University and the YWCA of Princeton. The meeting house was finally re-opened on a full-time basis in 1949.

Since that time, the Princeton Friends Meeting has been an active part of the Princeton community.

In 1954, a First Day School was begun. In 1987, the Princeton Friends School opened its doors, and by 1997, a new building for the Princeton Friends School had been constructed near the Quaker Cemetery.

Like other Quakers, members of the Princeton Friends Meeting have a long history of social action. According to Joy Smith, a member of the meeting, several Princeton Quaker families were among the early abolitionists. The community continues to be instrumental in the foundation and activity of local organizations such as the Coalition for Peace Action, Not in Our Town, the Clergy Association, and the Quaker Settlement at Stony Brook.

The peaceful grounds of the cemetery are still used today by the Quaker community.

They include more recent grave sites, such as a joint marker for Joseph Mercer Rampona, a physician within the Princeton community for half a century, and his wife, Ruth, and the burial site of Donald Elkhinton Stokes, the dean of Princeton University's Woodrow Wilson School, who died in 1997.

With its rich history and modest style, the Quaker Cemetery offers local residents an opportunity to become introduced to the history and significance of the Quaker community.

Like other cemeteries in the area, these grounds serve as an example of the beauty of historical sites and a reminder of the collective, ongoing history of Princeton.

focused on the relations of the two groups in a different region of the Middle East and North Africa: Egypt and Libya, Syria and Lebanon, Iraq, Morocco and other Barbary (Berber) States of North Africa including Tunisia and Algeria, and the non-Arabic Muslim states of Iran and Turkey.

Each symposium will be open to the public free of charge and bring together scholars, journalists, policy makers, peace and conflict resolution specialists, students and other professionals to focus on what is positive in the long history of Arab-Jewish relations and the common heritage of the two peoples.

The Institute of Semitic Studies, located in Princeton, is the first and only independent institute dedicated to the study of all ancient Semitic languages and cultures in the United States. Semitic is the overarching term used to describe the family of languages that includes Arabic, Hebrew, Ethiopic, and some other 70 languages.

Race for the Cure Set for October 20

On Sunday, October 20, an expected 25,000 women, men, and children from New Jersey and surrounding states will help fight the battle against breast cancer by participating in the ninth annual Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation New Jersey Race for the Cure. The Breast Cancer Resource Center (BCRC) of the YWCA Princeton will host the Race.

It will be held at Bristol-Myers Squibb (BMS) on Route 206 in Princeton.

The Komen Race for the Cure Series is the largest series of 5K fitness runs/walks in the world. In New Jersey, this is the largest foot race and the largest event to benefit women's health. Over the past eight years the Komen New Jersey Race for the Cure has raised more than four million dollars for breast cancer research and diverse services for the medically underserved. This year's goal is to raise over 1.3 million dollars.

The Komen New Jersey Race for the Cure began in 1994 and attracted 1,200 runners and walkers. The overwhelming support from New Jersey communities has led to explosive growth, and in 2001 it attracted more than 13,000 participants, and more than 25,000 people in attendance.

This is a family day of running, walking, prizes, merchandise, food, and live music. Children's activities include clowns, face painting, jugglers, and more.

Entry forms are available at many branches of PNC Bank, and the YWCA Princeton, online, www.bcrnj.org, or call the Race, 252-2008.

Advice for daily living

Family Advice Column:

3 SECRETS

By the Rev. Peter K. Stimpson

The Rev. Peter K. Stimpson

QUESTION: I have been reading your column for a few years, and finally decided to write and ask you a tough question. Are there any secrets about life that you have learned in counseling others that many never seem to learn? If so, what are they?

ANSWER: You are right. That is a tough question. But, here are 3 secrets, the answers to which seem to elude many.

1. INSECURITY: This may be a shock to you, but all people feel insecure. Growing up, I had this image that on the other side of the hill were all these "normal" people, and that when I went through that magic door into adulthood at age 21, I would be like them. Well, I am now 56 and there is no magic door. I have counseled people from all walks of life to whom others often turn for advice: clergy, doctors, lawyers, professors, corporate executives, as well as others who are rich and famous, and they all have one thing in common, they are human! They are just as insecure as you and I. If they honestly admit and face their clay feet, they grow. If they hide behind masks of superiority, making you think that they "have it all together", they don't.

2. POWER: Who has the power to define your self-worth? Thinking that love is conditional upon performance, most people nervously give their power away to those from whom they hope to get praise and affirmation: parents, teachers, employers, and spouses. Giving away your power condemns you to always worry about what others think. The secret is to take back your power, and define your own self-worth. OK, so you have some weaknesses, join the club. But, in general, you are probably a nice person. Once you rely upon your own judgment about yourself, it is as if you are wearing a psychological suit of armor. Others can hurt your feelings, but their demeaning criticism can no longer devastate you to the core. Why? Because you, not they, have the power.

3. SUCCESS: Most people equate success as attaining something big: a job, title, house, car, bank account, etc. If they do not, they feel like a failure. But, while pursuing achievements is good, it is the "little goal". The "big goal" is how your personality develops along the way. Homer once said that "the journey is the thing". Your job will end with a gold watch, your house will pass to someone else, your car will rust, but your soul will live forever. Who you become is defined by the choices you make in life: to be kind or cruel, loving or manipulative, humble or a snob. Life is a process of creating a work of art: YOU. Your death signals the end of your growth, and the judgment of God is to simply accept your judgment, allowing you to be as you have chosen to be, for all eternity. So, don't get mixed up; the big goal is who you become – the little goal is what you attain. Your Lexus will not fit into the coffin with you, but your soul will.

The Reverend Peter K. Stimpson

RELIGION

Priest and Scholar To Talk at Seminary

Dr. Sathinathan Clarke, an Anglican priest and scholar from Bangalore, India, will deliver Princeton Theological Seminary's annual lectureship on missions on Monday, October 21 and Tuesday, October 22. His topic is "Re-Imagining Christian Doctrine with Subalterns in India."

Dr. Clarke is associate professor in the Department of Theology and Ethics at United Theological College in Bangalore and has degrees from that institution, from the University of Madras, from Yale University Divinity School, and from Harvard University Divinity School, where he earned his Th.D.

In 1998 he wrote Dalits and Christianity: Subaltern Religion and Liberation Theology in India. Subalterns were junior Indian officers in the British army during the Imperial British oversight of India. Dalits are poor landless peasants in rural India. Dr. Clarke has written about the untouchables of India and others who are not empowered in that culture. He has also written about Christianity in India in the context of Hinduism.

The times and topics of his lectureship at Princeton are as follows: Lecture I: Monday, October 21 at 7 "Subalternity, Religious Identity, Politics, and Christian Theology in India." Lecture II: Tuesday, October 22 at 1:15 "The Fragility of Doctrine: Oral Cultures and Christian Doctrine." Lecture III: Tuesday, October 22 at 7 "Re-Imagining the Atonement: An Indian Subaltern Offering."

All lectures will be held in the Main Lounge of the Mackay Campus Center and are open to the public free of charge.

The Rev. Dr. George Toole, a graduate of Princeton High School and Princeton Theological Seminary will be the featured guest preacher at the 11 a.m. worship service at Kingston Presbyterian Church. He recently retired as pastor of the Towson Presbyterian Church. The leader of the 9:30 a.m. adult church school class will be the Rev. Dr. Charles Bartow, professor of communication and speech at Princeton Theological Seminary.

A luncheon will follow the morning service. Members will share their memories of past times.

Needs of Children Is Focus of Church

Each October, Children's Defense Fund, the Washington D.C. based advocacy organization, encourages congregations of all faiths to focus on the continuing needs of our nation's children. On the weekend of Oct. 18-20, Nassau Presbyterian Church, will join thousands of churches, synagogues, mosques and other places of worship around the nation in observing The National Children's Sabbath.

Services will be held October 20 at 9:15 and 11. Leading the music for these services will be the Covenant Singers, a blended choir of children in grades 4-8 made up of chorists from the church and from The Trenton Children's Chorus. This choir will travel in February, to sing at the National Cathedral in Washington, DC for the 30th anniversary celebration of the founding of The Children's Defense Fund.

This year's Children's Sabbath theme is "Repairers of the Breach: Congregations Acting to Leave No Child Behind." According to Marian Wright Edelman, founder and president of Children's Defense Fund, "There is today a devastating breach in our national, state, and community policies and practices that leaves millions of children behind... There is a breach between rich and poor... There is a breach between children's life chances depending on race and ethnicity... The breach of hunger and homelessness and lack of health care hinders millions of children from learning and developing to their full potential."

Mt. Pisgah A.M.E. Church, 170 Witherspoon Street, will hold its 18th annual Gospel extravaganza on Sunday, October 27 at 4. The event is sponsored by Rachel Conover Missionary Society. Donations are $7. For tickets and information, call 883-4689 or 924-9017.

Trinity Church on Crescent Avenue in Rocky Hill will hold a rummage and bake sale on Friday, October 18, from 4 to 7 p.m. and Saturday, October 19, from 8:30 to 2.

Receiving is scheduled for Monday, October 14, through Wednesday, October 16, from 9:30 to noon and 6 to 8. Shoes and summer clothes will not be accepted.

REAL ESTATE AND YOU
By Tod Peyton

WHAT FIXTURES MUST STAY WITH THE HOUSE?

When a dispute between a buyer and seller about whether a fixture is included in the sale of a house goes to court, several rules are used in deciding the case.

The most critical test is whether the item is permanently attached to a structure or land by means of nails, bolts, screws, cement, glue or other permanent attachment. If it is attached, it has become a fixture and has been converted into real property. Wall-to-wall carpets, for example, are attached, but not oriental rugs.

If there is nothing specific in the sales contract about a fixture, it is automatically included in the sale. Sellers may sometimes think they can substitute a cheap replacement for an item they want to remove. In that case, the intent of the sellers might be determined by consulting the multiple listing service descriptions and the information sheets given to buyers.

To avoid misunderstandings, home sale contracts should specify what is included or excluded. For example, the contract might include electric garage door openers, floor coverings, window treatments, combination doors, awnings, light fixtures, TV antennas, outdoor plants and trees.

For dependable individual advice on buying or selling real estate, call Tod Peyton, Realtor or any Peyton Associate at 921-1550. Please feel free to stop by my office at 343 Nassau Street in Princeton.

DROUGHT KILLS - PART II
Help...We're Dying of Thirst
with Pepper deTuro
WOODWINDS ASSOCIATES

Silent Suffering: A tree's first damage from drought occurs beneath the soil line in the form of root damage long before any outward signs of trouble. Feeder roots dieback sometimes so drastically that the tree is unable to take up enough water and nutrients to support itself. Watering now before the ground freezes cannot be overemphasized. Even during the dormant season plants will continue to take up water.

Slow, deep watering to and beyond the drip line--as opposed to brief, surface watering--helps sustain trees. Approximately one inch of water applied once a week will maintain moisture in the upper soil level where most root tips exist.

If you do not have an irrigation system, consider having one installed. If your existing system does not include all of your most valuable trees and shrubs, consider additional zones. For most efficient water utilization, inspect existing systems, repair all leaks, replace washers and adjust output to a coarser spray.

New Listing

In Guernsey Hall, the John Notman mansion originally built ca. 1852, a spectacular dome ceiling and curving staircase are the perfect introduction to this elegantly appointed second floor condominium. A formal entry opens to the living room with the 12' ceiling crowned with egg and dart Greek key molding. A carved rococo style mantel and marble surround define the fireplace and an intricate inlaid wood floor and tall bookcases and windows complete this handsome light-filled room; French doors with a broad transom, lead to a tiled terrace with planters and Lutyan style benches overlooking a swath of lawn bordered by trees. A bedroom/study, with glamorous bath, also opens to the terrace and features built-in cabinetry and a wood floor with inlaid border. A well-planned kitchen has a delightful hand-painted backsplash. The spacious master bedroom overlooks the beautiful Italianate side garden and opens to an intimate balcony, and the master bath has a ceiling medallion and delicate ceiling border. In Princeton.

New Listing

In this handsome Colonial, it's hard to find a reason to leave home--it's all right here, inside and out. A two-story entry, with curving staircase and dentil molding, introduces the step-down living room and formal dining room with bay window and chair-rail. The heart of the house is the light-splashed family room, with fireplace and wall of windows, and the spacious kitchen, with its center island and sunny breakfast area. A door opens to a handsome tiered mahogany deck, with steps to a brick patio. Nearby, the laundry and powder rooms. Upstairs, the master bedroom and master bath, three pleasant bedrooms and a hall bath. Outside: a sweep of lawn leads to a children's playground and the King's Crossing clubhouse with pool and tennis courts. Close by, beautiful Montgomery Park. If you have to leave home, there is easy access to major routes and train services. In Montgomery Township. $559,900
